JOHN W. DAVIS denies that he was ever a member of the Ku Klux Klan. He says, "I never was, and never shall be a member."

That is definite. The question that interests politicians is "How much difference will it make in the vote?" Between the Ku Klux Klan and various religious organizations in various States, Mr. Davis will find conditions much mixed up on election day.

That's the one piece of "home news" for the day.

IN EUROPE the Allies and Germany have got together, as was expected, and in fact settled, long ago.

Merely getting together will enable our European friends to get a few hundred million gold dollars from the United States. The wise thing is to get together, and it has been done.

ENGLAND AND RUSSIA apparently agree on a treaty. The House of Commons applauds it. England wants business, not fancy notions. You don't hear the statesmen of England talking the pitiful drool that comes from American statesmen about Russia's immorality, how she must be a good Christian nation and repent in sackcloth and ashes before we have anything to do with her.

LORD BEAVERBROOKE expressed the British attitude when he said, "Why shouldn't Great Britain trade with Russia? We trade with cannibals if they have anything that we want to buy or can buy what we have for sale."

BRITISH LEADERS are statesmen and business men also. Our politicians are neither statesmen nor business men. And that is a handicap for the American business man who wants to get his share of the world's trade.

THE PARIS MATIN, in an interview, quotes Secretary Hughes to the German government as follows:

"Don't make any mistake; this is your last chance."

Secretary Hughes warned Germany that if she did not approve the Dawes plan she must "not count any more on the United States."

ON THAT POINT, of course, the United States and not Secretary Hughes would decide. He will pass on. The United States will remain.

FURTHERMORE, it is risky to say to a nation possessing seventy million inhabitants and considerable scientific knowledge, that its "last chance" has come. It would have been foolish to tell France in 1870 that she had had her last chance. It is foolish to tell Russia, as our statesmen do tell her, that she must do what we say, or go to the wall via famine, disease and anarchy.

GERMANY and other nations will have many more chances. Eventually, it is to be hoped, they will settle down to a combination of nations, a "United States of Europe," and stop fighting.

IF ALL broadcasting stations imitate one in Massachusetts you will have a dull radio campaign. The Massachusetts concern decided that candidates may talk about themselves, their own party, and praise themselves. But they must not attack their adversaries.

IT'S THE SAME old "censorship" again. With the first printing of books, printers were told that they must say only what they were allowed to say. Milton put an end to that in England.

Newspapers could say only what high authorities allowed them to say. "The Constitution of the United States is supposed to have ended that.

THE MOVING PICTURE and radio, being new, the same old censorship appears to tell one set of people what they must say and another set what they may

A light east wind brought temporary relief from the heat today.

Springing up at 9:30, it retarded the steady climb of the temperature and made life once more worth living.

There was no promise that the wind would continue or that the relief it afforded would prove lasting.

At the Boston Weather Bureau the best they could do was predict fair weather, with little marked change.

Eleven deaths and hundreds of prostrations have marked the heat wave in New England to date, and there has been acute suffering in the big industrial cities.

Brookline Stenographer, for Whose Death Doctor Is Held, Was Illegal Surgery Victim

When Miss Monica Maloney of No. 20 Jamaica road, Brookline, died in a physician's office in New York, her brother, her brother-in-law and Thomas Doig of Boston, her employer, were at her side, according to dispatches from New York today.

Although they pleaded with her to explain away the mystery connected with her condition, she would not speak

In the New York city mortuary today an autopsy was performed on the body.

The report made after the autopsy was to the effect that Miss Maloney, twenty-three years old, and a recent school graduate, died of septicemia as a result of illegal surgery.

Dr. Hadley Gannon of No. 29 East Eighty-ninth street, in whose office she died, is held without bail on a charge of homicide.

PHYSICIAN IS ILL.

SEEK SPOT TO LAND FLIERS

Exploration Ordered Before Decision on Ending the World Trip Is Made

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 8 (A.P.).—A conference called by Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder on the flagship Richmond today decided to make a final effort to find a safe landing place for the American army world fliers on the east coast of Greenland before deciding whether the flight would have to be called off.

The cruiser Raleigh of the patrol fleet has been ordered to investigate ice conditions on the Greenland coast and find a possible alternative from Angmagssilik as a landing place.

The report that a safe landing place on the east coast had been found was declared to be without foundation.

The advancing season makes further delay dangerous, but the fliers declare they are willing to remain at Reykjavik until Sept. 1. They refuse to consider the possibility of flying at sea from a cruiser.

New York, Aug. 8.—Responding to the continued progress of the Inter-Allied Conference, sterling exchange today again mounted to a new 1924 high record at $4.52¾, an overnight gain of 1 cent.

France crossed 5.60 cents in a new high level on the current movement. Buoyance of the other European exchanges was in sympathy with the rally in sterling and francs.

AGED MELROSE POLICEMAN BEATEN

Edgar Sherburne, sixty-year-old veteran of the Melrose police department, is dying at his home, the victim of a brutal attack.

Paul E. Di Donato, thirty, of Stevens place, Melrose, is being held in $1,000 bonds pending the outcome of the policeman's injuries.

Sherburne, for thirty-five years a member o the Melrose police department, was found unconscious in a field off Foster street, Melrose.

Police officials and citizens had been searching or him for hours as a result of his failure to ring his duty calls.

He had been viciously beaten about the ace and chest, and was still unconscious today.

FOLLOWS AUTO CHASE.

From what can be learned by the police, Officer Sherburne was standing at Foster and Main streets, Melrose, shortly after midnight, when a touring car approached without lights. The policeman called to the driver to stop, but the man put on speed and dashed away.

Officer Sherburne commandeered the automobile of Marshall W. Decker of Perry street, Malden, and gave chase. The pursuit led through Main street to Melrose

St. Louis Society Woman and Springfield Girl Disappear From the North Shore

Gloucester, Aug. 8.—Mrs. Thomas Galt of St. Louis, a Summer resident of Annisquam, and her guest, Miss Julia Hitchcock of Springfield, were today believed to have been drowned. An all-night search for them proved vain. Today two airplanes joined the search.

A canoe found by searchers this afternoon at Plum Cover Beach was identified as the one used by Mrs. Galt and her companion yesterday. An airplane arrived from Boston to assist in the search. It had been summoned by John Mays Hammond, Jr., whose Summer home is here, to make a careful survey of the many coves and inlets along the coast in this vicinity.

The woman and girl, clad in bathing suits, set forth in a canoe from Annisquam shortly before a severe thunder storm yesterday afternoon

When they failed to return the police were notified and with coast guards began a search that was still going on today.

The couple were seen shortly before the storm by a small boy, at which time they were headed toward Essex. They were near a spot that is usually extremely rough during a storm.

Starting at 11 o'clock last night, a squad of Swampscott police followed the bank of the Annisquam River as far as the Essex River, repeating the search on the other side.

Mrs. Galt was forty-five years old and her guest nineteen.

Miss Hitchcock is the only daughter

KLAN HAS SECRET SERVICE SYSTEM

Like all empires, the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan has a Secret Service. This organization of mystery is described in today's instalment of "The Confessions of a New England Klansman."

While the ex-Kleagle who is writing the series never belonged to the Secret Service, he has known many of its operatives. They are the Klan's super-spies. Not only do they operate against Catholics, Jews and anti-Klan Protestants, but against Klansmen suspected of treachery or guile. They are the eyes of the Imperial Wizard.

By AN EX-KLEAGLE
ARTICLE NO. 1

ALL is mystery in the Ku Klux Klan. Naturally the Klan's secret service is particularly and peculiarly mysterious.

Even men long in the order—kleagle and klavs and klusks—know little of the workings of the order's national secret service, which operates out of Washington.

It is responsible to the imperial wizard and his staff and to nobody else, so far as I have been able to discover.

It is modelled on the secret service of the United States in its mode of operation. Men never are assigned to cover their home districts or States.

I have met many of them in the performance of their duties and in ordinary Klan gatherings. I have one powerful impression of them. It is that they are not only not fanatical klansmen, but many of them do not believe in the Klan at all.

They are, for the most part, cynical young men who would be Pinkertons in less troublous times. Some are former policemen. Some are ex-newspapermen. A great many are graduates of private detective agencies.

Bland, worldly wise, they go about their duties for what there is in it. Some of them understand how to "fake" evidence and manufeature cases. They seldom disappoint the heads of rural klansmen when they are sent out to investigate a Catholic.

When they get through in a neighborhood, their knee is the weaker-minded among the Klansmen shaking in their shoes, while Romanists still unaware of their hands behind every lamppost.

Many times these operatives do not investigate at all, but spend their time drinking good liquor and playing indifferent poker in the privacy of their hotel rooms.

One of their duties is the investigation of klaghas and Kling Klaglets suspected of lukewarmness, and of candidates for high office.

Frequently cash will appear in a State and nonoperative as a blotch's fanatical hatred of Catholics, meantime striking out lists of information from the very man with whom they recently conferred.

Speaking of former private detectives, I am reminded of a funny situation which now exists in a Middle Western State.

The principal secret service boss of the Klan there is a man with an Irish face, an Irish name and an Irish brogue. I do not know if he is a Catholic. He apparently is well paid. He is among the few Catholic friends of a particularly virulent enemy of the Klan.

There are many other instances of this kind. Catholics should bear in mind this secret service point in their fight.

Political Make-up

I may say that the service operates almost as against Protestants and klansmen than against Catholics, and to political in makeup that best describes it is that world would have no chance were he masons non grata to the Imperial wizard and the Atlanta Klan Kloran stood.

Are Klan officials paid? That is a question often asked by the uninitiated.

Lots of officers, such as nighthawks and kinds, are seldom paid. Usually the kligs or custodian of property is occasionally paid.

Kleagles are paid usually; in fact always when the klavern gets more enough.

I was kleagle of a small klavern and I got $75 a week, but that was then and a half years ago. Pay has advanced.

Clerical help is paid, of course, such as the kleagle's secretary.

Like all political organizations conducted by bosses, the Ku Klux Klan is interlaced with graft, big and little.

An ordinary klansman has no more idea where the money goes than an outsider, and he is subject to petty temptation.

For instance, I know a young man in a small Western town who gave up a good job as a constable to take a minor post with the Klan. He was paid $15 a week.

A little bit later I met him on the street and asked him how things were going with him. He was discouraged. He said that the kleagle was making him turn back $10 of his pay for the upkeep of the klavern.

"This is a common form of graft. I wonder how much of the money gets back into the klavern treasury?

Take it on my word, for I know the old-fashioned political dodges a leader could play. Grand Kligle Atkinson of the 100 per cent Americans in the K. K. K. and learn how to commit petty larceny in a grand manner.

Who Gets It?

Frankness and truthfulness have been the basis of true greatness. So I hasten to admit that I don't know where the money goes after it gets above the klavern officers and into the hands of the supreme Kligle.

This I do know, some prosperous, educated and respected American business men have dug deep to put the Klan over.

The $10 initiation fee and the $5 due go mostly for upkeep and organizing work. Additional activities are financed almost entirely by subscription.

In a certain New England town I know men who have come through with as much as $15,000 to spread the gospel of the K. K. K.

When the slick, silver-tongued salesman who planned this mammoth organization hit upon the idea that "Liberty" or the finest thing in the world to sell, he hit the foundation of the Klan's business, and, at the same time, its lack of greatness.

(Copyright, 1924, by the Boston American.)

UNCLE SAM turns the other cheek. Denounced and hated by Japan because he ventures to decide who shall occupy American soil, he allows Japan, first of all the nations, to send letters by our cross-country flying machines. Japanese stamps, sold in Japan, will pay for the transportation, and help Japanese business men. Other countries will have the facility later.

(In tomorrow's article I shall discuss the experiences of a klansman after initiation; the things he learns; the way he is set against his fellow-citizens; the way the Klan seeks to further the interests of klansmen and ruin Catholic and Jewish business men; the manner in which the Klangets into politics when it becomes strong in a city or town.)

GRANITE STATE BATTLEGROUND OF KLAN

The battle ground of the Ku Klux Klan and the anti-Klansmen in New England has shifted to New Hampshire.

A general call to the Klansmen to Colby New Hampshire on Sunday has been sent broadcast and anticipates that gathering which will be the greatest in the history of the order in New England, other activities of the hooded organization are practically at a stand-still.

A meeting of the Klan is scheduled for Boston for tonight, at which E. H. Wilson of Athens, Ill., is scheduled to speak, but his gathering will be small in comparison to that scheduled for Sunday.

At Concord, N. H., where it is proposed to hold one of the Klan meetings Sunday, Mayor Kent has announced that he will permit no Klansmen wearing hoods to appear in the city. He has instructed Marshal Kimball to see that when the paraders assemble the throw of all the Klansmen are uncovered. Otherwise the Mayor has no objection to the meeting.

West Roxbury, Mass., it will also be the scene of a big Klan gathering Sunday, and field has been secured for the meeting and invitations have been extended to the Klansmen of Providence, Greenfield, Athol, Gardner, Fitchburg, Marlboro, Shrewsbury and other Worcester County towns to attend this meeting.

DEFENCE STOPS CALLING LAY WITNESSES

Expect to Close Case for Loeb and Leopold Monday, Darrow Says

Chicago, Aug. 8.—(I.N.S.)—Counsel for the defense in the Leopold-Loeb trial changed their tactics today. At a conference of the lawyers, who are seeking to save the two confessed slayers from the gallows, it was decided to put on only such as stand only "a few more" of the large number of lay witnesses, college classmates and friends of the boys to testify concerning the oddities and eccentricities that mark their school careers.

The decision will enable the defense to close its case by Monday according to Clarence S. Darrow, chief of the defense counsel. Two more alienists it was said, probably will be put on the stand as to the mental condition of "Babe" and "Dicky."

State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe is reading heavily on his foresight in the "Babe" and "Dicky" family confessed two months ago that they slugged and strangled Bobby Franks "just for a thrill."

At that time, in an effort to get all the light possible on the crime that amazed the country, the State's attorney took statements from nearly everyone who knew the youths.

USES THEIR STATEMENTS.

Their schoolmates, their instructors, their friends, with unanimity told how these had always considered Leopold and Loeb two average young college students, brighter than most but normal, sane young men.

Now Crowe is using these same statements and opinions to confound the alienists seeking to save the necks of the young slayers by presenting them to court as abnormal born degenerates from childhood.

The defense may decide to forego the testimony of a score or more of these lay witnesses and rely solely on stand the relatives of the two boys.

Mrs. Albert H. Loeb, mother of "Babe," and Chicago's Mme. Modjeska from Charlevoix, Mich., according to members of the family. She is said to be determined upon this course, and will stand to aid her boy despite advice of physicians who have told her that to do so may result in herself. She has been in a state of prostration ever since Dicky passed her over the telephone. "It is true, mother," he told her.

ORDERED TO GET OUT WITHIN 48 HOURS

Wins will extend a helping hand to John B. Thomas, seventy-seven Yearold Civil War veteran?

Before tomorrow noon he must have a place to live, and he is willing to pay as much as $60 a month for it.

Mr. Thomas and his family have been ordered to vacate at No. 54 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, because the Board of Health has ordered the owner to tear down the building.

He has been unable to find a suitable home where children are permitted, and was summoned into court by the owner of the property, Charles Roach.

Judge Arthur P. Stone in Cambridge Court ordered the Thomas family to move in forty-eight hours.

The time is up tomorrow at noon.

If no suitable rent has been found Thomas will have to appear before Judge Stone for failing to comply with the court's order.

The family must have a nine or ten-room house.

There are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas, their daughter, son, daughter-in-law, and four grandchildren.

Thus far the children have prevented them from getting another rent.

dispatches had been received from army advance party accompanying the world fliers from the naval convoy which indicated any necessity for abandoning the army's world flight.

25,000 Veterans Aided By Bonus Bureau

During the months of June and August 25,000 bonus application blanks were given out by the Boston American-Advertiser Bonus Bureau.

Between 500 and 600 persons applied to the bureau for assistance in making out their applications.

This has only scratched the surface, however, as there are 225,000 service men in Massachusetts alone, and, according to American Legion officials, only 1 per cent of the membership of the organization have applied.

In Rhode Island, Connecticut and other New England States, there are 500,000 service men.

It is imperative that applications be made immediately, otherwise, there will be a tremendous flood during October and November, with the result the government's bonus forces will be snowed under.

There seems to be a misunderstanding as to whether or not those still in service may apply for the bonus. They may, either men or women.

It should also be remembered that relatives of service men who die before their applications are made cannot obtain the full amount.

Make your applications now at the Boston American-Advertiser Bonus Bureau, Winthrop Square, Boston.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

Here are some answers to questions asked by veterans and answered by the American-Advertiser Bureau:

MRS. F. C. BARTONSTILL.

Q.—My husband has been in from June 28, 1918 to January, 1919, and would he get it?

A.—Your husband will be entitled to receive a twenty-year paid-up insurance policy amounting to the face value of $300. In the event of your husband's death within twenty years from date of policy will be paid to whomever he names as his beneficiary. If at the time of your husband is living at the end of twenty years, he will receive the face value of the policy.

J. E., PORTLAND, Me.

Q.—I am a veteran now in receipt of compensation. I was in the service from 1918, to June 9, 1919. What could my insurance policy amount to? Also what would I have to wait before I could get a loan on it?

A.—You will receive a paid-up insurance policy with the approximate value of $1,100, payable in cash at the end of 20 years. You are entitled to borrow on your policies to be issued under the bonus law after the first year of the policy.

JOSEPH H. J., KEENE, N. H.

Q.—My son was killed in action May 28, 1918, while in the Navy. Am I entitled to bonus?

A.—Your son and sister are entitled to the bonus, or children under 21 years of age. If there are no children, the widow is entitled. Parents would be entitled to receive the bonus only in the event that there is no dependent upon him at the time of his death.

J. W. P., NORTH ATTLEBORO.

Q.—I have filled out my bonus application blank. I have since been informed that I should have had it executed and that it should have been sworn to by a Notary Public. Is this correct?

A.—When a veteran himself applies for the benefits of the Bonus Act, he need not have his application sworn to. It is only necessary that he sign it. Should he desire, he may have it sworn to before a Notary Public for your application and they will charge you a fee for their certificate. In the event application need not be typewritten, but question No. 12 should be either typewritten or printed with pen and ink.

Starting at 72 degrees at 1 o'clock this morning, the temperature was only 78 at 10 o'clock, as against 94 yesterday at the same hour.

The electrical storm which swept over New England late yesterday brought little tumble relief.

At the hospitals today it was stated that unless the heat wave broke, heat prostrations would increase rapidly. The average person's resistance has been worn down by the cumulative effects of day after day of unrelieved discomfort.

Hundreds of persons spent the night in the parks and along the beaches where only a minimum of relief was afforded, as the hot winds from the west continued like blasts from a giant furnace.

According to the weather prediction the siege will be prolonged, Saturday, and there are indications that this will mark the beginning of the end of the hot weather—the worst Boston has experienced in years.

The seven dead of heat within the past twenty-four hours, in addition to the four killed in the hot wave yesterday, are:

Mrs. Mabel F. Robinson, twenty-six, No. 7 Roycroft road, Peabody, who died from exhaustion due to the heat at the home of a relative at No. 15 Chestnut street, Peabody.

Rosanna, three-month-old twin daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Schrimpf, Jr., No. 156 Willow street, Chelsea, who died at the home of her parents.

Cornelius J. Shea, fifty-four, No. 54 Salem street, Lawrence, who died while bathing at Salisbury Beach after getting overheated.

Calvin B. Chase, fifty-eight, No. 203 Main street, Brockton, who collapsed near his home and died soon afterward at Brockton Hospitals.

DYING BANK MAN SILENT ABOUT SHOOTING

Examiners at Putnam, Ct., Fail to Reveal Any Shortage in His Accounts

Putnam, Conn., Aug. 8.—Still conscious, though hovering between life and death, G. Harold Oliparius, assistant treasurer, cashier of the First National Bank of Putnam and director of various other industrial and utility companies, refuses to explain why he shot himself in his home yesterday.

Federal Bank Examiner Beane of this district and two assistants, who worked all night over the accounts of the bank, were still busy when the bank reopened for business at 9 o'clock this morning.

Assistant Cashier Guy D. Baker stated that the bank is entirely solvent and that the bank examiners have as yet uncovered nothing irregular in the accounts.

State Bank Commissioner John Byrne said there was no doubt that the accounts of the state were in perfect order and that owing to the safeguards placed around the distribution of state funds it was impossible that any shortage should occur.

the East State seventh street police station to Bellevue Hospital.

Because of his physical disability his arraignment before Magistrate Renard in the New York Homicide Court was postponed.

Until this afternoon it had been stated that Miss Maloney was not accompanied by friends or relatives when she died. Miss Maloney, who has been employed as a hair dresser and a stenographer since she left school, went to New York by boat ten days ago.

Following her death, the body was removed to an undertaking establishment conducted by the brother of the medical examiner's office, was notified.

The first intimation her father, John Maloney, had of the tragedy was when he was notified by the Boston police.

"Peritonitis and heart failure were the causes given by Dr. Conboy for the death of the girl.

A strange feature is the fact that the body was removed from the doctor's office to a morgue before the arrival of the proper authorities and when the medical examiner's assistant went to the morgue he found the body already embalmed.

The body was at once taken in charge by the authorities and Dr. Cannon was ordered arrested.

Detective Burdett of the New York force, who has been assigned to the case, has learned that on the previous day Miss Maloney was a visitor to the doctor's office and on the day she met her death she expressed fear that something during the afternoon and never came out alive.

SISTER TALKS.

Miss Maloney lived with her sister, Mrs. Bailey, her mother being dead. Mrs. Bailey accompanied her to the railroad station when she left for New York and she is unable to know any more than she has told.

"My sister always wanted to see New York," said Mrs. Bailey. "When it came time for her vacation she said she was going there for several days, although she did not know anyone in the city. We did not object as we thought she could take care of herself." The sister has gone to New York to claim the body.

Miss Maloney was widely known in Brookline. She was a graduate of St. Mary's Academy and had come for several years had been employed by a dressmaking business firm as designer.

QUICK TRIAL IN RHODE ISLAND BOMB CASE

Court Holds Three Accused Men in $5,000 Each; Oct. 6 the Date

Providence, R. I., Aug. 8 (I.N.S.)—William C. Pelkey, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee; John T. Toomey of Johnston and William "Toots" Murray of Boston, were held in bonds of $5,000 each when they pleaded not guilty today before Judge J. J. Hahn to indictments in four counts charging them with conspiracy in connection with the placing of a gas bomb in the State House chamber.

In giving the defendants two weeks in which they may change their pleas, Judge Hahn said:

"If the pleas of not guilty are allowed to stand, trial will commence October 6. The only thing that will prevent it will be the sickness of the defendants."

The indictments charge an attempt to disable Lieutenant Governor Felix A. Toupin, a conspiracy to place a gas bomb in the Senate chamber to attempt to obstruct the Lieutenant-Governor in the performance of his duties, and the endangering of the lives of the members of the Senate.

square, and then along Lebanon street towards Malden.

The fleeing car was overhauled near the Malden line, and Dolcer continued on his way, leaving officer Sherburne talking with the driver, who is said to have been DiDomato.

When Sherburne failed to ring his duty calls after midnight, the police officials became disturbed, as he has always been faithful and punctual. A search was made by Captain Seaton set out in search of him, and were assisted by several citizens in automobiles.

Wenfield Oakley of Melrose, by accident turned the lights of his machine into a field off the Lebanon road and discovered the bleeding form of the missing policeman. The spot was more than a mile distant from the place where Sherburne had overtaken the fleeing motorist.

The officer was rushed to his home where physicians stated his condition was too serious to permit his removal to a hospital.

The police intend to divulge the clue that led to the arrest of DiDomato. Two officers went to his home today and took him to the police station, from where all knowledge of the attack when arraigned in Malden Court.

PSYCHOLOGISTS BANISH TERRORS THAT STALK LITTLE FOLK

SOME LITTLE BOSTON FOLK, THREE VICTIMS OF FEAR, ONE THAT KNOWS NO TERROR AND TWO WHOSE FEARS HAVE VANISHED.

TESTS SHOW PARENTS OFTEN TO BLAME

Limehouse and Arabian nights have no horrors equal to those which flit about the bed of a child afraid in the dark.

Against the somber background of the night the minds of nervous little folks hang fantastic embroideries of horror. The evasion enlargement of Uncle Ben, terrifying enough even to adults by broad daylight, there, five hung in the nursery, wears a miserable, menacing look when a shaft of moonlight crosses it. The curtain flapping in the breeze seems a whispering witch. Brass handles on a bureau become eyes, nose and mouth of a squatting demon. And what is "the thing" that one always expects to see jump through an open transom?

FALSELY DISCIPLINED THROUGH FEAR

Parents are impatient with the childish fears of childhood. So the professors have taken up the matter of insomnia of imaginative children with a view to getting a full night's sleep for the future generation by having spooks swept from the cells.

FEAR CAN BE KILLED.

The Institute of Educational Research of Teachers' College, Columbia University, after months of experiments with a hundred or more children at the Hecksher Foundation, has made certain deductions about the fears of children.

You can kill fear—if the cause is imaginary, as, for example, the dark. You can conceal fear—if the cause is real—fear of dogs, for instance.

Burning the midnight oil sometimes quiets a nervous child. But the Institute believes, says Dr. Otis W. Caldwell, its chairman, that you must convince a child that there is nothing in the dark to hurt him.

When no harm is to be found in the object of fear, the inclination to disturbance disappears.

Fear, we learn from these experiments, is not inborn, but rather an acquired state, in a manner of speaking. No child under two has been found to dread fire, darkness or animals. Some children, when others are near, are brave over situations that would create hysterics if experienced when alone.

"Many a child is falsely disciplined through fear."

Dr. Caldwell discusses the origin of deliberately cultivated terror.

FEAR OF ANIMALS CAN BE BROKEN DOWN

"This is false, as discipline, and it lays a foundation for many adults living nervously because of unfounded fears, of which timidity in the dark is the most common.

HOW TO BREAK FEAR.

"Yet the fact that a fear is foolless does not remove the reality of it to a child. One must stay with a child until he learns that the dark won't hurt or scare him. Animal fears can be broken down by bringing the child into the presence of the particular offending creature, being careful, however, not to force the rabbit or cat or dog upon him to create panic.

"Sometimes a child afraid of a rabbit is given food at the same time the animal is in the room. The association of something agreeable with the presence of the rabbit abolishes the fearful feeling of fear, which is often only the result of associating the animal with something unpleasant, either experienced or expected.

"It is easy to acquire fears. But if they are not conquered there will exist a wrong mental attitude," Dr. Caldwell says. "Fear is unnecessary. If an adult fails through fear, it is merely the expression of a weakness. Of course, sometimes there are biological reasons for some of these handicaps, but in the case of exceptionally capable people who fail in after life, people who are normal, we can go back and find some such cause."

COMMON FEAR OF DOGS.

Fear of dogs, Dr. Caldwell states, is quite a respectable type of trepidation.

"What! A great big girl like you afraid of a little dog!" is the favorite form of address from the owner of a disagreeable Pekingese or poodle. Many people who fear dogs do not exactly dread any prospect of being bitten, but have a feeling over of dislike from warnings heard in childhood against caressing any and every stray attractive puppy.

TERRORS OF THE NIGHT

"Lots of children ought to be afraid of dogs," our informant emphasizes. That is one of the dangers against which fear is the biological defense.

"We ought to fear to cross the street, or not get in a panic about it, merely have a protective fear."

"There's one thing we do know, that an evident fear of a dog increases the danger from the animal. You protect yourself in hiding your fear."

It was inevitable that the talk would get around to the danger of telling fairy stories to impressionable children. Dr. Caldwell believes this "danger" is overestimated.

HORROR STORIES DANGEROUS

"Children must have something to appease their imagination. They demand such stories. But the desirable ones lack the element of horror. And they should not be too far removed from the bounds of possibility.

"In stories about bears, for instance, one can tell a child: There are no bears roaming about in this country. And in countries where they do have bears, these animals run away at the approach of a person, and are more afraid of you than you could be of them." This will preclude the chance of the child thinking big bears are hiding under his bed."

WEDDING PRESENTS FOUND

Mrs. Brown, of Newton Highlands, had despaired of being able to find a suitable wedding present for her niece, Miss Adele Brown, who is to married next week. Her baby was sick and she had no time. So she wrote to Priscilla Price, the Boston American's shopping expert. Her letter was answered by return mail, and Mrs. Brown was able to order a lovely present over the telephone. Priscilla Price had given her such accurate descriptions of several articles, that it was a matter of a few minutes to decide which one would be best. Priscilla Price would like to help you, too. Science Tests New Remedy to Dispel Fears

By International News Service.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 8.—Dr. H. H. Rusby of No. 226 DeGraw avenue, this city, dean of Columbia University School of Pharmacy, was making preparations today to report on experiments with Caapi, declared to be a fear-dispelling drug, which he discovered in the reaches of the Amazon River three years ago. Dr. Rusby and his assistants have been making a scientific analysis of the drug for some time past.

The report will be presented to the National Conference on Pharmaceutical Research, which will be held August 23 in Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. H. V. Arny of Montclair, a professor at Columbia University, will preside. Dr. Arny is president of the American Pharmaceutical Association and also chairman of the National Conference.

SHENANDOAH HEADING FAST TOWARD N. E.

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 8.—The naval dirigible henandoah left her mooring mast at 10:30 daylight time today, and driven by a west wind at the rate of 25 miles an hour headed for Narragansett Bay, R. I., where she will be moored to the mooring mast aboard the U. S. Dakota for a test of the mobile anchorage.

The flight to Narragansett Bay is said ordinarily to require about three hours, but air station officials said that the strong rear wind probably would shorten the flying time considerably.

The big cruiser is in command of Lieutenant Commander Lansdowne and carries a crew of 37 enlisted men. One army officer and one civilian also are on board.

If weather conditions stay favorable the Shenandoah will remain anchored at the Patoka's mast three days and nights in order thoroughly to try its stability and the effect of mobile mooring upon the airship's duralaluminum frame.

WIDOW ASKS $50,000 BALM OF POLICE CHIEF

Los Angeles, Aug. 8.—A $50,000 breach of promise suit was filed in Superior Court here against August Vollmer, former Los Angeles chief of police, by Mrs. Charlotte N. Lex, a hollywood widow, formerly Miss Charlotte Lee of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Lex, who gives her age as thirty-five, alleged in a complaint that Chief Vollmer promised last May he would marry her on or about August 1, but that he later refused to do so and married some one else, instead.

CAMBRIDGE MAN DYING AFTER HOLDUP

Cambridge police officials are questioning four bold highwaymen who posed as friends to Thomas Hodnett, of No. 1429 Cambridge street, and lured him to a doorway at No. 61 Austin street. They beat him on the head until he was unconscious and then robbed him of $4.

Hodnett is dying at the Cambridge City hospital from a fractured skull and body injuries. He was found lying unconscious in a pool of blood in front of No. 61 Austin street and has been conscious only long enough to tell the officers how he came to be there. He does not know who his attackers are and he can give no description of the men.

A woman who lives near the scene of the attack but whose name the police are withholding for the present, told the officials that she saw four men standing on Austin street shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. She says that she later heard some one scream but was unable to see anyone.

LIQUOR SEIZED IN FERNCROFT INN CLOSETS

Middleton, Aug. 8.—Dry agents from the office of A. H. Stoneham, federal chief, swooped down on Ferncroft Inn here while only a few diners were eating and seized two cases of assorted liquor after breaking down the doors of two small closets. Owen Sullivan and Wilfred McLaughlin, proprietors, will appear in Lowell for arraignment next Tuesday.

Armed with a search warrant the dry agents entered the premises while Owen Sullivan was at Salem making some purchases. They waited for a while before they broke into the closets and seized the liquor.

ACCUSED JURY BRIBER WANTS MISTRIAL CALLED

New York, Aug. 8.—William J. Fallon, attorney, on trial charged with bribing a jury, today demanded that Federal Judge George W. Clintic dismuss the jury and declare a mistrial. Fallon has been acting as his own attorney. The motion overruled the motion.

Fallon's motion came during cross examination of Charles F. Craig, comptroller of New York, a witness for the government. Judge Martin Conboy, interrupted and threw out some of the questions as Fallon became angered.

PROTEST OVER PAPERS BY CONGRESS ASPIRANT

Secretary of State Cook has received a protest against the nomination papers of George B. Sisson, Worcester, for Congress from the Fourth district, from Michael F. Flaherty of Worcester. Flaherty claims that the papers are invalid because the exact title of the office is not set down. He also objects to the written authority given by Stobbs to another to accept the nomination.

$25,000 Yarn Factory Fire

Providence, Aug. 8.—Fire today destroyed the 2½-story yarn factory of the Davis Woolen Mill at Daisyville, causing a loss estimated at $25,000. A crowd was attracted to the blaze, which was visible for miles. The mill is owned by Thomas Curry of Wickford. About 45 people were thrown out of employment.

DRUG PEDLAR MUST EXPLAIN GIRL'S DEATH

New York, Aug. 8 (I.N.S.)—Reopening of the Rene Harris' death case is probable, police said today, with the arrest of Mari Giminez on a narcotic charge.

Giminez was arrested and held for ten days after the death of Miss Harris, a Cleveland, O., girl, last May in Giminez' room. An autopsy revealed presence of a small amount of morphine in her stomach.

Giminez told police at the time that the girl, who had come here from Cleveland to seek work, had no place to sleep so he took her to his room. He met her on the street, he said. That night she was taken suddenly ill, he said, and died before she could be taken to a hospital. Efforts to contact him with the death failed and he was released.

Giminez' latest arrest came about when he was found outside the stage door of a Broadway theatre. Police allege a complete hypodermic outfit was found in his pocket. Detectives say they have had frequent complaints of a dapper young man stopping girls on the street and suggesting in veiled terms the use of narcotics "to brighten them up."

Smoking Auto Greets Girl Reporter Who Would Fight Fires

By THE GIRL REPORTER

When this lady hankers to create excitement, something's got to be done, that's all. And excitement's about all there is, if we can't get home in my daily life. So when the spirit descends upon me, watch out—that's what I always tell my family.

Well, yesterday it seems like I couldn't get my mind off of how dull everything is, especially dishes, which I am supposed to wash before I can get any more to eat, owing to having only one relay of same for all occasions.

BECOMES A SPARK.

"What's to do?" I inquires of my soul plaintively and looks about the flat. There's nothing there except dirty dishes, unless you want to count in a dirty floor, dust, etc., which doesn't appeal.

"Nothing," the answer from the interior of myself comes back loud and clear when "You——ecee——eeeee" smrs to the heavens from in back of my humble abode, and the local trouties are off in a cloud of dust to put out another fire.

Fire fighting is a thing I haven't tried yet, so I flings the insulting dish towel out the window, dons my new red flannel shirt, and makes a beeline for firehouse No. 10 around the corner on River and Mt. Vernon streets.

"Hello, girlie," says a fireman who hasn't gone to the fire, "got any fires you'd like put out?"

"Listen here, Mr. ee——I was ignoring the frivolity.

"Hoseman McLaughlin," says he, swelling up and starting to fix his necktie. He's real young and dark—quite the sheik. So we get on fine together.

"Well, Mr. Hoseman McLaughlin, I want to go to a fire," I says coy.

ing straight to the point as is my custom.

ALL RULES OFF.

He roars a big laugh, and says back into the fire house—

"Hey, Shorty, here's a cutie wants to go to a fire—ha, ha!"

Now if anything gets me raving to go it's to be treated like I was a bit feebie upstairs.

"Aw—you might let me get a look at your nice shiny auto anyway," I says.

He sort of hesitates, it being against the rules I guess, but no more rules have a chance to hold up when a flapper has made up her mind, if any, to go through.

So first thing you know he's scooting me onto a big old hosecart that's clean as a whistle, but I'm getting the brass knobs all smeared up with my fingers which are clammy on account of me being nervous on the eve of a great plan.

SPARS FOR TIME.

"Now, you better come down," he says, but I am climbing way in side under a ladder and asking fool an questions to cover up my scheme.

The fireman called Shorty is coming along to his rescue. So I have to two of them to stave off. So I take a true flapper way and starts fluttering the men folks.

"Oh——" I says to Hoseman McLaughlin, Hosie for short, "Hosie, who's the good-looking man?"

Hosie is rude and laughs right in my face.

"Say, Shorty—you're accused of being good-looking—there's something new for you."

"What's his name, Hosie?" I whisper, and Hosie roars back—

fangled steering wheels for rear seat drivers and looks to me as if I see Jo his dandiest to land so in a ditch, what with steering just the opposite from the way the hook and ladder is heading.

"Whoopee-la!" I yodels in my best form. We arrive!"

There's a pile of fire engines, but I'm the only female fire fighter I see—plenty of crowd, and all the chief's goodbye to a good fire—except the fire.

CHIEF ROARS.

Nothing but an antique auto which is spouting smoke out from under the hood and a worried looking man in the driver's seat saying in no uncertain terms what she thinks of the dern fule who turned in an alarm.

"Let's put the auto out!" I scouts standing up and wishing to distinguish myself so's to be taken on the staff permanently, owing to my liking the life of a fireman both.

Some little guy in a little red suit and "Chief" written on his cap about me and turns a lovely shade of purple.

"Who let that—on there?" and points at me in my new red shirt.

I don't like to discuss painful things, so all I'll say here is that I had an awfully nice ride some with the chief, though he seemed a little upset—and I had to promise not to be a fireman again. Somehow I never get a chance!

WOMAN FINED AFTER DOGS ATTACK COP

Miss Rena Fisher of No. 46 Hecksher Park, South End, was fined $5 in Municipal Court today for keeping an unlicensed dog.

The complaint was made by Special Officer James F. O'Neil of Division 5, who told Judge Lourie he with Sergeant John McDonald got into the home through a rear window. He said a fox terrier and another dog attacked him, biting him in several places.

KING WILL NOT SIGN TREATY WITH SOVIET

London, Aug. 8 (I.N.S.)—The treaty and commercial agreements between Great Britain and Soviet Russia, negotiated after the Anglo-Russian conference had abandoned its work on a large scale by signed today at 10 Prime Minister MacDonald and Arthur Henderson, Under Secretary of Foreign Affairs, will sign for Great Britain and Leonid Krassin, Adolph Joffe, Christian Rakowsky, Tomski and Sokolnikoff sign for Russia.

The treaty does not contain the name of King George, because the Russians have no titular head to their government. Thus the Russians will sign for their government as a whole and the Britons only for their government with no mention of the sovereign.

The issues the question of whether or not the Soviet government will be found by a treaty omitting mention of the king and inducing the Third Period in naming the treaty for American system of nomenclature in the hands of loyalty from loyalists.

In the entire history of English treaty-making this will be the first time the King will not want a great deal. It is creating much comment in London.

DIRT IN TONIC GIVES BOTTLER FINE OF $10

Charges against Hugo Wainwright and Bernard Hamel, both of Wainwright in the [illegible] of a tonic manufacturing and bottling concern on No. 918 Harrison avenue, Roxbury.

A truck load of the product was seized by Thomas Hynes, South End, it was being delivered to South End druggists and both drivers were arrested.

Inspector John F. Lenihan of the Board of Health testified that when it was thought it was found to contain the fungus ingredients referred to and to be altogether unfit for human consumption.

Wainwright pleaded guilty. Another inspector for the Board of Health testified that a year ago he seized a truck load of the defendant's tonic and after analyzing it put it into the sewer. There was no prosecution of that time.

The prosecution of Wainwright was part of the general program of the Board of Health to compel tonic and ice cream vendors to observe the ordinary sanitary rules.

DAVIS LEAVES TONIGHT FOR CLARKSBURG HOME

New York, Aug. 8 (I.N.S.)—John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, will leave here tonight for Clarksburg, W.Va., where he will receive his formal notification of the nomination next Monday.

He visited his headquarters here today and gave final instructions to his workers in connection with the opening of his campaign following the delivery of his acceptance speech.

The candidate has not yet decided whether he will remain in his home town, Mr. Davis said, after his speech or return immediately to Locust Valley, Long Island. Mrs. Davis is ailing at Clarksburg.

AMERICAN LIFE-GUARD TESTS NEXT WEEK

Savin Hill Beach and Strandway To Be Scene of Instruction Work

Savin Hill Beach, Dorchester, and the Strandway Beach, South Boston are the scenes of instruction and tests for the Boston American Red Cross life saving corps next week.

The sessions will be in the morning, because of the Carnival bills next week. Captain Jack Wallace will have a squad of assistants to handle all volunteers, men, boys and girls.

With additional men who assist at Revere Beach and others at Tenean Beach, Dorchester, finishing their tests today, the Boston American lifeguard crew of fifty members is practically complete. There is, however, no limit to the size of the corps, which already, in addition to the uniformed lifeguards, numbers many junior lads and junior and senior girls.

The honor list of members including the lifeguards and the others will be announced early next week. The men have been on duty for nearly a week now, and for the coming week-end, holidaying all will be out in the suits furnished to the fifty by the Horace Partridge Company.

MRS. STEINERT DIES AT HER SUMMER HOME

Wife of Piano Firm Head Succumbs to an Attack of Nervous Disorder

Mrs. Hosea S. Steinert, wife of Alexander Steinert, head of the piano and music house of M. Steinert & Sons Co., of No. 162 Boylston street, died at Commodore Hall, Summer residence of the family, at Beverly on the North Shore today.

Mrs. Steinert had been ill of a nervous disorder for the past two months, but her recovery had been hoped for by members of her family and friends. She was born in Boston, fifty-four years ago, and was the daughter of the late Abraham Shuman, for many years one of the leading merchants of Boston and president of the Board of Trustees of the Boston City Hospital. Her early education was received in Boston, supplemented by time abroad.

While deeply interested in artistic projects, Mrs. Steinert was always of the first in furthering Boston's claims to eminence in the dramatic and musical arts, which she was ever ready with her purse, in small worthy artists to enable them to continue with their studies or to give them their start in a career. Of a most modest disposition, she was still deeply interested in all philanthropic matters, to alleviate the needs of those less fortunately placed than herself.

She is survived, besides her husband, by two sons, Robert S. and Alexander Long Steinert. Another son, Russell Lee, died about five years ago.

Her son, Alexander, who has been abroad during the Summer, is due to arrive in New York on the Berengaria and is yet unaware of her death.

Funeral services which will be strictly private, will be held next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Summer residence at Beverly.

The family's town house is at No. 401 Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

DAUGHTERS OF VETERANS' HEAD COMING NEXT WEEK

News was received in Boston by the Massachusetts Daughters of Veterans of the death of Mrs. Ingalls, mother of Mrs. Drusilla Ingalls Hamlin, national president of the organization. This will not prevent Mrs. Thayer attending the convention next week, as it was announced that after the funeral of Mrs. Ingalls, she will proceed to Boston.

Society Festivals are Becoming Much Less Ornate

By Betty Alden

IN these days sumptuousness isn't much of a "go."

People are getting tired of being dazzled by too gorgeous parties. Some of the most sumptuously arranged affairs have fallen quite flat just because they were "too much."

There were too many effects, all too overwhelming or too theatric. The host or hostess who "splurges" without limit seldom gives the jolliest parties.

The most successful affairs—whether they're arranged privately or by individuals or by groups to benefit some deserving cause—are not often ostentatious.

They may be "different," and still be quite simple.

Which is one reason the fancy dress ball to take place by the guests of "Swiftmoor" will be.

A band of prominent matrons are arranging this affair for August 20 to benefit the Fairyside Day Nursery of Boston. "Swiftmoor" is the Pride's Crossing estate of the Alden Wickfields.

Needless to say, all the fun-loving members of the North Shore colony are concocting unusual raiment to don for the occasion, which promises to be one of the jolliest and most widely attended affairs of the Summer calendar.

An effective feature will be the mid-way erected in the courtyard and along the approach to the stables.

Mrs. Herbert James (Mary Townsend) of Gloucester street is one of the committee in charge of the ball and tickets may be obtained from her or from any other member of the committee. The latter includes such well-known younger matrons as Mrs. Frederick J. Stimson, Jr., of Wickfield colony this season; Mrs. Hendricks H. Whitman, who is proving herself more expert than ever at tennis this Summer; Mrs. Robert S. Potter, of Manchester; smart looking Mrs. J. Kenneth Howard (Ruth Gaston), also of the Manchester colony this year, as well as Mrs. Robert S. Potter, Mrs. Thomas S. Blumer and Mrs. Hamilton.

I see that some of Gotham's fashionable contingent will have the thrill of viewing themselves on the silver screen.

At Southampton there has been considerable ado about the widely paragraphed "Charlot's Review," staged at the Long Island resort earlier in the week for the benefit of the Southampton Hospital.

Until the members of the cast returned to New York, they were extensively entertained by various Summer colonists. Motion pictures were taken of the cast with their hosts and hostesses which will be shown in New York and other cities.

Pictures were taken, among others, at "Clavecrack House," the Summer estate of Mrs. Thomas H. Barber, showing the latter herself being carried through the gardens of the place. Mrs. Barber is the mother of Mrs. Roger F. Hooper (Justine Barber) of Boston, who has been visiting at "Clavecrack House" this month.

MRS. HERBERT JAQUES
(Strain by Maryott)

The former Mary Townsend is of the prominent group working for the success of the costume ball set for August 20 'n the stables of "Swiftmoor," the Wickfield estate at Pride's Crossing.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Frothingham are spending August at the Essex County Club in Manchester.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Stanton J. Peelo of Washington are at the Hotel Thorwald in Gloucester for the season.

Miss Eleanor Seavey of Hamilton left recently for California, where she and her parents spent part of the Spring. Miss Seavey's engagement to Richard Matthews Griffith of Los Angeles was announced a few weeks ago.

WHEN MAUDE ADAMS WAS PAID ONLY $35 A WEEK

New York, Aug. 8.—Chorus girls and movie actresses who demand high salaries were given something to think about when Daniel Frohman, theatrical producer, said: "In the early days Maude Adams was paid $35 a week, and Margaret Anglin got $40. William Faversham was paid $50, Henry Miller $60, James K. Hackett $100 and E. H. Sothern $150. In those days we thought Richard Mansfield's terms were being paid extravagant sums."

PRINCE OF WALES NOW IS 'BARD OF BRITAIN'

London, Aug. 8.—The Prince of Wales was installed as the "Bard of Britain," and given the title of "Iorworth Drwyson," at the Welsh National Eisteddfard—the great musical competition—at Pontypool. The Prince wore a long white robe, given him by Lady Treowen, wife of Lord Treowen, general director of the festival.

Fireman Retired

Mayor Curley retired William J. Kane, a bidderman in the fire department for thirty-three years, a half pay because of incapacity.

K. OF C. ACTS TO CHECK HARMFUL LITERATURE

New York, Aug. 8.—Action against dissemination of immoral and harmful literature was taken just before the forty-second annual convention of the Knights of Columbus closed. The recommendation was made in a committee report and the convention referred the matter to a supreme headquarters for organization and financing of the movement. North Carolina's bid for the next annual meeting was placed in the hands of the supreme board of directors.

SOCIETY ACTIVE IN HUB'S FIRST STREET FAIR

Uncle Sam's Market in Copley Square October 6

Notable Event

Social leaders of the North and South shores will take an active part in "Uncle Sam's Market Place"—the first street fair which is to be held in Copley square the week of October 6.

Society women and debutantes from all over New England have volunteered their services and will take charge of the various booths.

All of the proceeds of the booths will be decided to the Disabled ex-Service Men's Exchanges and Occupational Headquarters, Inc., which has a shop at No. 295 Boylston street, where former service men who are still disabled are allowed to sell anything they make during their spare time. This shop has been made salable by a group of women headed by Mrs. Clarence B. Edwards and Mrs. Horace Morison.

There will be fifty booths of every description. A community quilt is planned by the women of the North shore will be held on the steps of the Public Library.

A cabaret under the direction of Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., and Mr. Thomas Lothian is expected to attract a great deal of attention. Prominent young society people will furnish the entertainment.

The women of Cape Cod are planning a very attractive exhibit of Cape Cod products. Marion is planning to have a special booth which will be known as "Cape Cod Folks," under the direction of Mrs. George Hamlin and Miss Marjorie Thayer. Mrs. Frederick B. Whitwell, Mrs. Allie and Mrs. Charles Parker are very active in preparing plans for a booth to represent Osterville and Hyannis. Under the chairmanship of Mrs. Allen S. Weeks and Mrs. James C. Stafford of New Bedford will have a unique booth.

A theatrical doll booth, in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. Harold Crosby, will sell dolls dressed in the costumes of famous actors and actresses.

Mrs. Benjamin Franklin Pitman, president of the association, organized to promote the fair. The co-presidents are: Mrs. Timothee Lamontagne, Mrs. Oliver Ames, Jr., Mrs. Lars Anderson, Mrs. Harriet Andrews, Mrs. Clarence H. Edwards, Mrs. John Lowell and Mrs. Horace Mousam. Chester I. Campbell will act as advisory manager of the fair.

Lodge Rests Comfortably

Dr. John H. Cunningham, attending Senator Henry Cabot Lodge at Cartesgate Hospital, Rye, issued bulletins yesterday. The hospital announced the Senator was resting comfortably.

Police Investigate Changing of Lady Astor's Portrait

London, Aug. 8.—Police are investigating the mystery of how and by whom Lady Astor's portrait on a wall of the House of Commons staircase, side by side with that of Queen Elizabeth, was altered.

It had been reported the former Nancy Langhorne's portrait would be ordered removed. But it is still in place, though covered with a curtain labelled, "Not to be moved."

It depicts Lady Astor in a beautiful gown, wearing a bracelet with a chain pendant.

Someone using a pencil drew a padlock on the end of the chain.

GLACE SOUNDS COOLER

A SHERBET SET of amber glass makes you think of glace desserts. They sound so cool. Round, bowl, good size, 6 matching low glasses. Each on 3 little ball feet, instead of stems. Narrow band of brownish frosted at rim of each. Complete set, $1.00. Distinctive shape. Beautiful.

CUT GLASS is made into a fruit cocktail set of 6 for $1.99. Grape pattern. Roomy. On slender stems. Graceful.

OF A COOL GREEN glass is a 4-piece console set. $1.89. Twisted candlestick stems. Black stand under bowl. Lovely shade. Large enough for side of table in dining room. Fill with fruit. Or flowers, and put in hall.

A FERN DISH is made of lovely green pottery. Round 7 inches across, about 3 inches deep. 39 cents, with separate fitting pot for plant. Go into the woods and find ferns for it.

SALT AND PEPPER are more tasty if they are shaken out of ducklings 2 on a silvery stand with handle, to pass with. Colored pretty greens, red, yellow, blue. $2.00. Nice on country breakfast table.

FIREPROOF for summer and winter heat is a brown teapot with inch blue band near top. Trimmed with gilt. Shapely. Strong. Sturdy. Sauntry. Holds plenty for 4.

FROSTED GREEN GLASS makes a good sized flower basket with handle. 79 cents. Graceful spread at each side. Dainty in lining room with pink and white cosmos.

OUTSIDE your window fasten a thermometer. 98 cents. Glass complete with brackets to attach to wood. Easy to read. Useful.

POLISH your eyeglasses and see clearly all day. No moisture collects in any season. Clear as crystal. 15 cents a long bottle.

SMOKE GLASSES or amber or fleurel come with imitation tortoise rims and are only 50 cents a pair. Good to keep sun out of eyes, or wind when you drive.

BON BONS are tempting if put in a silver-plated basket, with handle. Good size, pretty openwork design all around edge. 99 cents. Low, spreading sides. Nice on bridge or dinner table.

A GLANCE at my reply to your appeal for advice will help you to buy clothes, gifts, favors, cold cream, everything a woman needs or wants. There is no charge. Send loose stamp. DO NOT send envelope, care Boston American, Winthrop Square. PRISCILLA PRICE.

NEW ENGLAND WEEK BOOM BY WOMEN

Girls' Organizations Manifest Enthusiasm Over Aiding Project

If "To Know New England Products is to Want New England Products," as the "All New England Week" slogan suggests, interest enthusiasm among women would indicate that the demand for such products is going to be very great.

Mrs. C. S. Bird

Formal endorsements of the movement have already been given by the Y. W. C. A., Massachusetts League of Girls' Clubs, Massachusetts Girl Scouts, Inc., Women's Trade Union League and the Camp Fire Girls Association.

In endorsing the movement the Massachusetts League of Girls' Clubs, No. 8 Newbury street, felt that the 27 active clubs scattered throughout this State, together with a few in Maine and Vermont, would be ready to co-operate in any way possible.

Mrs. Maud Foley Van Vaerenwyck, president of the Women's Trade Union League, and Miss Pearl Katz, secretary of this organization, joined in pledging the support of the league.

Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, chairman of the Women's Division, has expressed herself well pleased with the enthusiasm shown by the women and the offers of co-operation received to date.

LEHIGH PETITIONS FOR $12,000,000 BOND ISSUE

Washington, Aug. 8.—The Lehigh Valley railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue and sell $12,000,000 of General Consolidated 4 per cent. mortgage bonds. The proceeds to be used toward paying off $15,000,000 of six per cent. Collateral Trust bonds. The new bonds will be sold at 96.5 per cent. of par.

CLOTHING WORKERS BALLOT ON STRIKE

GIRL GARMENT WORKERS

Carmelina Alba Dessa and Michelina Pesca, both finishers, had in insert Mrs. Diamante Gallucci, a buttonhole maker, were among those who voted on a strike referendum late yesterday.

Plans for the peaceful picketing of the scores of the shops where 5,000 men and women are employed in Boston as garment workers on men's clothing are being worked out today in anticipation of the calling of a general strike in the industry within the next few days.

No date for the strike has yet been set but it will likely be called for the first of next week. The matter is in the hands of the local and national officers of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

The garment workers have voted unanimously for a strike, based on the contention that the employers in Boston are not living up to the union agreement by sending out work to non-union shops.

The workers are entirely satisfied with wages and working conditions but they insist that when work is sent to other shops that the employers of these shops belong to the union.

The officers are planning an entirely peaceable strike although the pickets will endeavor to persuade non-union workers to refrain from going to work in the shops where the strike will be called.

Joseph Salerno, general organizer of the union from New York, and Sidney Hillman of New York, general president of the union, will assist the officers of the local union in directing the strike.

A similar strike will be called in Philadelphia, shortly, according to the officers of the union.

BIGGEST OF ALL R. R. MERGERS UNDER WAY

Van Sweringens Will Combine Five Systems Under Single Head

New York, Aug. 8. (Universal)—Subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission the largest single railway merger in history, involving capital estimated at $1,500,000,000, was outlined by lawyers associated with the expansion of railway properties owned or controlled by Oris P. and Mantis J. Van Sweringen of Cleveland.

The Van Sweringen expansion plans the consolidation of the "Nickle Plate" with the Erie, the Pere Marquette, the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Hocking Valley. Later the Wheeling & Lake Erie may be added to the group.

Radio Queries

I have a three-tube tuckabee. It works fine on the low waves, but on the higher waves I have to use more filament current. The first variable condenser has little effect. I had to connect the grid thru 6,000,000 ohms. Is that right?
—Ed. H. Green, Milton, N. H.

You need more turns on the grid plate coil. This should have about 45 turns on a 3¼ inch tube. The condenser for this coil is the .23-plate one. Grid leak may go to either .4 plus or minus.

I have an American Superflex made by a member of our family. The left dial is vertical, but the right does not make any difference by the tuning. The crystal does not operate. Have 75 turns on the outside coil.
—Miss H. F. S.

Your crystal, improper rheostat adjustment, four H battery, or insufficient turns on primary of second coil, will cause this.

Have built a Superflex, but have had trouble with the crystal. Can you give data for changing to tube detector?
—SUPERFLEX.

See answer above. If unit No. 2 is made like No. 1, a tube may be used for detector.

Enclosed is a sketch of our hookup. Is this kind of a hookup in use? Will it bring in distance? Is it radiating? Will it work on a loop or indoor aerial?
—H. W. G.

I—Seems to be two stages of radio-frequency, detector and one of audio, but just how it is hooked up we couldn't make out from your description. —This combination when properly built, should give good distance. Send complete to tell without seeing hookup. —Probably.

PUZZLE NO. 9

This is a very exclusive X-ray picture of the composite mental machinery of Leopold and Loeb, the Chicago murderers.

Note the "boyhood phantasies" in the upper right, the "diseased motivation" and the "absurd childish compact" in the lower left, and the generally hashed-up appearance of the whole thing.

This photo would be enough to wring the heart of any judge, and we expect it to cause a sensation if it ever gets to Chicago.

However, you don't have to have a card in the alienists' union to put the pieces together today.

We made this puzzle easy to celebrate the half-way mark on the contest. When you get this object named and its use in radio, you'll be starting on the home stretch to one of the following well-known prizes:

First, four-tube Coto-Coil set; second, Acmeflex Kitset; third, choice of pair of Como push-pull transformers or Trinity loud speaker; fourth, Peerless Twin-Aud; fifth, Se-Ar-De audio transformer; sixth, General Radiox .0005 mfd. variable condenser with vernier gear; seventh, Peerless Kondenser Kit; eighth, pair of Towers' earphones, and ninth, National four-inch Velvet Vernier dial.

Easy to put this set together!
A set you can put together
No technical knowledge or workshop required
YOU no longer need to put off making a radio, for lack of a workshop or technical knowledge. The new Acmeflex Kitset has changed all that. A screwdriver and a pair of pliers are the only tools you need and they are given you with the kit. The front porch is workshop enough, and the complete directions for putting the set together, which are included with it, take the place of technical knowledge.
Everything needed for the set is in the box. The only accessories to get are tubes, batteries, loudspeaker and cabinet. You can put it together in one evening and have a set as good as anyone's—a famous 4-TUBE ACME "REFLEX." You can hear everything on a loudspeaker and have "all the year 'round radio."
Furthermore, the operation of the set is so simple that your wife or the kiddies can use it. Price $65.00. Send for descriptive circular.

SEQUEL OF CHICKIE

By Elenore Meherin

Boston Girl's Impassioned Love Story and Her Struggle to Live It Down and Come Back

THE girl flushed, looking very young and alluring. Chickie thought: "She won't get it—why did she wear such a hat—but it's so warm here—"

She has scarcely time to finish this brief judgment when the girl swept back to the room, her cheeks scarlet. She made a bolt for the door. The same thing happened to the midget, only she returned with a grin from ear to ear.

The severe applicant was called. A long moment elapsed. Chickie was allowed to apply. "Miss Hatchet," as Chickie christened her predecessor, sat cigarously at a table taking dictation from a flustered, unhappy-looking man while directly facing the door, behind a small railing, was a straight featured woman with a wide mouth literally crammed with long, heavy teeth. She watched as Chickie entered, then reached for a pencil stuck in her hair. "Your name? You've had experience in legal work? No? Sorry; you won't do."

No courteous: "We may give you a chance. You may hear from us." No "sit and rest yourself a bit." Not a word Chickie walked unsteadily to the door.

In the hall the midget waited for the elevator. She burst into a laugh at the sight of Chickie. "You, too! What a scream. I suppose the fright gets it."

Chickie said whimsically: "Sweet and gracious, wasn't it?" I never was bounced out on my ear like that before."

"Perhaps it's your first experience with a jealous wife. She's the Jones of the firm. The husband is the "and." I knew what to expect, but I thought I was inoffensive enough to get by. They say she throws a fit if he even looks at a pretty girl. I should worry with a dollar in my purse! Do you need the job?"

Off All Summer

"In a way—yes."

"Tough luck. I've laid off all Summer, and that's the only one worth looking up—"

"Oh—I saw another—"

"I'd like to bet it's the one that said 'must have personality plus, also initiative.'"

"Yes."

"I'll say you need the plus, all right, to sell their fake oil units. That's the job. I went there last week. Well—so long. I'll have a little more vacation."

Chickie was a little dismayed with this breezy dismissal of her chances. But it was a fine, amber day toward the end of September. The air was full of sweetness and there was still the third ad.

She walked through the shopping district, stopping for a brief, caressing glance at the wondrous colors of evening gowns newly imported. The shops here fascinated her, especially that one that had such a summery air, with birds in cages, so that when you entered a flash of song and a dart of yellow met you.

The address was blocks beyond this. Her buoyance sank as she reached the paved pilot with fruit boxes, crates of vegetables stacked at the curbs. She went on to the middle of the block, breathing gingerly.

Unloaded Meat

At the address she had marked, an enormous butcher dray was now parked and two men lifted out whole beeves, lambs and pig, slinging them over their shoulders. Drips of red went down slowly, smudging the sidewalk. Chickie gulped, taking in the raw, fresh odor, but she followed the men into the darkened area. They hung the meat.

In a corner on a small platform was a door with the glass painted white and "Office" written blank and large. Chickie almost ran to it, more in the hope of getting a free breath than from any eagerness to begin work in these surroundings.

A thin man in a frock coat, who looked more like a discouraged, wonderful preacher than a wholesale butcher, admitted her. He said: "Well—you come about the ad—I can't exactly say—" He seemed very uncomfortable. In the corner, just hanging her coat on a hook, was a poor looking, sallow girl. She eyed Chickie, almost with appeal, brushed a heavy bottle fly that kept circling about her head.

Finally the man said: "But you might leave your name and address. Miss Nelson isn't sure she can do the work."

The sallow girl sat very still, her eyes glued on a note book. There was something dramatic and hopeless in her quiet. Chickie's ready imagination took fire. She said on a sudden impulse: "I couldn't do the work at all. I've never had experience. I'd rather not consider it."

Went Quickly

She went out quickly, scarcely pausing till she was well into the breeze and sunlight again. It surprised her to find her nerves quivering. Jobs like that—fill up your rugs with heavy, odious breaths—go your feet in those red smudges on the sidewalk? She was glad Miss Nelson seemed to want the place so wretchedly.

Well—that was the last of the last. Another week of idleness—going on two months now. Chick's young her purse. It wasn't going to last. Why—it couldn't! Plenty of work—

She went to the bank and drew out $100 in currency. She had a breathless, dizzy feeling doing this. Yet she felt herself very tall, very friendly when to the clerk who slapped the bills across the counter.

Riding out to the hospital she wondered how she should offer this money to Elena Castenada; wondered if the girl would resent her efforts? She would have! If any one had come to her and said: "I know of a nice room, you can stay as long as you like, if anyone had said that to her she would have turned cold as steel. She would have smiled and thanked them so that they would be filled with mortification.

Different From Elena

But she was different from Elena, Chickie knew that. She was young enough—yes. But for that thing she did, she and she only was responsible. Jew would know no other to be held accountable, for this would have trailed it all in unbearable shame.

Her own heart, her own spirit—swept though it might have been made by the sacrificial urge of a girl's first love than by its own wild will—had you poured itself out freely and of its own spontaneous prompting. This was its one justification. She would have burned to hear herself catalogued as "betrayed."

But this Elena was such a child thing. And it was different having no home to go to and not so much as 10s money to buy her dinner. Chickie had never been desperate like that.

She grew excited and more impatient and fervid than in the night.

Eva was just dressing to go on duty. She turned with lazy surprise when Chickie walked into her room. She said cheerfully: "Well, woman—I thought you were job seeking today."

Chickie answered without introduction: "I want you to get this to that Elena. Will you?"

Eva stared at the crumpled notes Chickie had thrust in her hand: "You must be out of your mind. If you've got so much spare change—"

"You can tell her that it's the custom of the hospital. And I know a room—"

Chickie Trembled

"Well—hold on a bit. I think she was to leave today."

Chickie trembled. Then she grew angry. "I told you I wanted to do this—"

"Well—wait a minute—we'll see." Eva went on with her dressing, saying with a long drawl: "You're awfully foolish. After she spends this, she'll still have the problem to face—"

"If she comes and stays where I am—well—what about that—it would be easier."

Eva shrugged. "I've never tried the guardian angel role, but I don't think too much of it—"

She was ready at last. As they went up to the ward Chickie said: "How can she go out today? She was in bed yesterday."

She'd been up since early morning. Wasn't that about it? She's been up four or five days."

Then Chickie said brusquely, "Get a move on, Eva!"

Elena's bed was freshly made—unoccupied. Eva lifted heavy shoulders. "I'll ask at the office."

At the office the girl said: "Oh, yes—the went out around 11. No—no one was with her except the baby—I don't know where. She didn't give any address."

Eva said: "You might as well forget her. She's on her way."

Chickie answered: "Yes." But for days she thought of Elena. She kept seeing the young girl, frightened yet defiant as the girl walked down the steps of the hospital, carrying her baby.

Where had she gone? Would anyone offer her a place? What became of the dozens who were like her and went out into the world with the same hopeless burden?

Could they stand up against it? On—how? And it seemed now to Chickie that the whole world ached with pain that was as great as hers. But no one cared; no one bothered to relieve it.

Now, passing a young girl with a baby, she stared at them. She thought pityingly: "Oh, you, too?"

It was a Saturday afternoon three weeks later. Chickie had been working on substitute with an insurance company. Eva came in lunch. She said: "Remember that little Spanish girl, the one who had the baby? I know where she is."

Chickie wouldn't rest till Eva agreed to go with her and visit the girl.

She would have burned to be known as "betrayed"

This house was an old one. They were where the basements stood on three sides of a neglected garden and clothes lines stretched from house to house.

A thin woman dry and brown answered their knock. She became instantly excited and poured out a tirade in broken English to which they asked for Elena Castenada.

MARTHA LEE BY RADIO

By MARTHA LEE
Broadcast From Station WNAC for WNAC American Woman's Club.

IT IS hot, isn't it? And you fairly recoil from the idea of hot meats and heavy foods of all kinds.

To me, these days, there are no words much sweeter than "cakes and milk," and I'm going to talk for a minute about the way milk is cared for in a modern dairy.

One of the things I hope to plan for our WNAC American Women's Club, a little later, is a trip through a dairy. I know we would be all interested in seeing the scrupulously clean dairy barns and buildings, the dairymen in their clean, white suits and caps, the sterilization process that the milk bottles and all utensils undergo, and the automatic filling and capping of the bottles with a final "inspection proof" seal wired over the tip of the bottle as an additional safeguard.

Eight Minutes

Only eight minutes from the time of milking is the cool the milk, fill cap and seal the bottles—and delivery is made to your home the following morning.

Cows are tuberculin tested twice a year and also examined monthly by a veterinarian to be sure that the herd is always in rugged health, all employees pass right medical examinations too, and the milker's hands are washed and dried every time before milking each cow.

In fact every possible human precaution is taken to insure 100 per cent pure milk for your home —the ideal food for the baby, the growing child and the adult. Use it freely these sultry days for luncheon—with graham crackers —its good too for supper, with plain bread and blueberries. Eggnogs should have an important place in a hot weather diet. Here are some variations of egg drinks that I think you'll enjoy and they are so cool and nourishing.

Orange Egg Nog

Beat white of 1 egg stiffly and add ½ tbsp. sugar, ¼ tsp. salt and juice of ½ orange. Add ½ tbsp. sugar and juice of lemon and ½ orange to yolk of egg and beat until thick. Then put ¼ cup crushed ice in glass, then in first mixture, then fold in second mixture gently and serve.

Egg Cocoa

Whits of 1 egg, 2 tsps. sugar, 2 tsps. cocoa, 2-3 cup milk. Beat egg until stiff, and add sugar, salt and cocoa. Add ½ of the egg mixture to the milk turn in a glass and put remaining egg on top.

Rice Croquettes with Cheese Sauce

Soak ½ cup of rice over night in just enough cold water to cover. Drain and add ¼ cup boiling water and cook in double boiler until rice has absorbed water. Then add 1¼ cups milk and cook until rice has absorbed milk. Then add ¼ cup cream. Two tbsps. chopped canned pimentos or sweet green peppers, drained, ½ tsp. salt and a few grains cayenne. Spread in plate, cool, shape, dip in flour, egg and crumbs, fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper. Pile on serving dish, pour around cheese sauce.

Cheese Sauce—Melt 2 tbsps. butter and add 2 tbsps. flour, and stir until well blended, then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly one and one-half cups milk. Bring to the boiling point, and add ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. pepper and 1 cup mild cheese, grated.

Browned Rice with Tomato Sauce

Boil and drain ½ cup rice. Heat an iron frying pan very hot and add 2 tbsps. butter, and when melted add rice, and cook until rice is slightly browned, stirring lightly with a fork. Put in a hot serving dish, pour over 1 cup tomato sauce and sprinkle with ½ cup grated cheese, lifting rice with a fork, that sauce and cheese may coat each kernel.

Last of all a real hot weather salad.

Cheese and Grape-Fruit Salad

Mash a large cream cheese, moisten with heavy cream, and season highly with salt, pepper and onion juice. Arrange around a mould of grape fruit jelly, sprinkle with chopped English walnut meats.

Serve with French dressing made by mixing ½ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. paprika, 1 tbsp. each vinegar and lemon juice, and four tbsps. olive oil. Stir until well blended.

Grape Fruit Jelly—Put 1-2 cup sugar in small saucepan, pour over ½ cup water, bring to the boiling point and let boil 3 minutes. Remove from range, add 1½ tbsps. granulated gelatine soaked in 2 tbsps. cold water, ¾ cup grapefruit juice, 1 tbsp. lemon juice, and a few grains salt. Strain into a bowl.

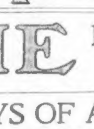
WAYS OF A HUSBAND

SEQUEL TO "WHEN A GIRL MARRIES"

By Ann Lisle



"WHERE else? If you stayed at home and didn't fill your head full of notable interests, you'd be alone as you are now."

"I'm not alone. I'm with Jim."

"I protested. "Don't blame him for working."

Ann Lisle

(Copyright, 1924, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"I'm not blaming anyone," she went on. "I'm just trying to help you. Perhaps I'm not keen to you, but I'm sorry for you. I'm sorry for Jim, too. He's getting to be a machine. He's losing his sense of proportion. He's getting to be a man who thinks of nothing but his business. And you're getting to be a woman who thinks of nothing but Jim. Neither of you is developing. Neither of you is growing. You're both getting narrower and smaller every day. Can't you see it?"

"I can't see anything but that you're unhappy and I'm sorry for you. I'm sorry for Jim, too. He's working for us. He's trying to get ahead. He's trying to make money for us. He's trying to—"

"Oh, I'm not blaming Jim. I'm not blaming anyone. I'm just trying to help you. I'm trying to help Jim. I'm trying to help myself. I'm trying to help you both. I'm trying to help you both to get back to the things that matter. I'm trying to help you both to get back to each other."

"I'm not indifferent as all that," I asked myself. "Once I was bitter about Ruth Gregory and his friendship for Jim. Once I resented his pride in knowing this celebrity. Now who am I getting her? Is it that I'm willing to let Jim go—even if he goes to her?"

After awhile I gave it up. And instead of laying sleepless, as I've done so many of late, I fell into a sound and refreshing slumber about two minutes after I got into bed.

Fashion Fads

Not a passing fancy, but an established mode is the shoe fashioned entirely of such novelty leather as antelope, alligator or lizard. Formerly used mostly as trimmings, these skins are now favored for the whole shoe, many stunning models being made in pump, strap and oxford styles.

What's in a name?—seems to be the question asked by those who ask the newest shades of gray hose but are unfamiliar with the various terms by their new titles of taupe, rain, cloud and storm. The gun metal, platinum and pearl shades are easier to identify.

Fashion boundaries again assert that sport an outreet frocks should show a belt somewhere around equitorial regions. Broad suede belts of beige, gray, red or green are very smart, some of these are studded in gilt or nickel nail heads, while others are plain but have an extremely odd buckle fastening that consists of two oblong knobs drawn through a ring.

Taking no chances of the colors of one's frock and top coat clashing the newest flannel knit dresses are but part of an ensemble costume—there being a three-quarter or sweater-jacket to match. Titian sand, almond green, brick dust, powder blue, vivid yellow and white are the chosen shades, all of which look lovely when trimmed in white kid pipings and buttons.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have two girl friends about my own age, whom I see nearly every month, and during that time we have become very good friends. At Christmas we gave not a gift, but I did send them a card. For their birthdays in each month, and I intend this to keep it up in a proper manner, but I'm in a quandary as to what I should write in the card.

BETTY.

YOUR practice concerning the birthday remembrances is entirely commendable. I think of sending the young men gifts at Christmas is an unusual and an right idea. I advise you to maintain this. And don't send him a card, for that is only addressed to him a formal expression of the sentiments of the sender, or of a person whose words and views he buys to sell to people who cannot express their own sentiments.

Write him a fine, nice, graceful letter, and sincerely expressing your good wishes and felicitations for the birthday and the year to come. I think that is delightful, also, if you wish to make another friendly gesture, to enclose this note in a book that will be "just the right one." And if you wish to start the day right for him, send him a telegram night letter that will be delivered early on the birthday morning. All of these are in good taste, and all indicate a respect for good form.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it good form to offer to a lady flowers wrapped with paper or placed in a box?

NEW YORK.

IT is better form to have the flowers put in a box.

Hero Rewarded; Retired on Two Thirds Pay

Mayor Curley has rewarded a hero of the fire department in one of the few cases of retirement on two-thirds pay on record in the city.

Thomas O'Mara of South Boston joined the department as a member of Engine 43 Company, in 1918, and on Nov. 11, 1919, while responding to an alarm, received injuries to his spine.

The injuries resulted in O'Mara losing the use of his lower limbs, ending forever his career in the fire department or any active employment.

ACCUSES TWO RICH SONS

Aged Mother, Exiled to Rest Farm, Says Support Is Withheld

Once upon a time Mrs. Ida Bluestein was an attractive young wife and mother. Her children adored her.

Although they were very poor she managed to get for them little comforts and luxuries not enjoyed by the children of her neighbors.

By missing a single woolen dress for two years, and practicing other petty economies, she managed to save a little money.

One memorable Summer she brought them out of Russia to the land of opportunity.

Two of them prospered. They are prospering still, for that matter.

In Lynn they know Morris Bluestein as the owner of a row of shops on Blossom street, and the proprietor of a kosher slaughter house. Nathan Bluestein, who lives on Pearl street, Lynn, is spoken of as one of the well-to-do of the city.

GREW OLD AND FEEBLE.

All that took years and in those years Mrs. Ida Bluestein grew old and feeble and penniless.

Her son Morris sent her away to a rest camp in Milton. "She was sick and her son, wife and children weaken at night," he stated. "Her life is passing. She should give the younger people a chance to live their lives."

Now Morris has discontinued sending his mother money, and unless matter is eased very soon she will be put out of the Milton rest camp.

In Dorchester Court Morris was found guilty of non-support, as was Nathan, and Judge Thornell fined them $50 each. They have appealed the case.

The other children of Mrs. Bluestein are not prosperous enough to assist their mother.

There is bad feeling between them because of the dispute as to who is the proper person to look after the old woman.

Times have changed. The attractive wife and mother of former days a time" is only in the way of the young people who want to live their own lives.

1 MISSING, 5 HURT, IN COCOANUT FIRE

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—One man was reported missing, and five firemen injured, when flames swept the cocoanut plant of the Gergas Pierce Manufacturing Company early today and damaged the adjoining plant of the Boston Linseed Oil Company. W. S. Dorse, an official of the cocoanut plant, said the loss may total $1,000,000.

The missing man was Walter Swallwood, watchman.

WOMAN KILLED IN HEAVY IOWA STORM

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 8.—A severe storm rushed across Iowa tearing down communication lines, uprooting trees and causing alarm in many communities. Wind and electrical disturbances accompanied the heavy rainfall. Many wires went out of Des Moines and other cities also. One woman was killed when her home, a farmhouse near Grimes in Polk County, was demolished by the wind.

AUTO RUNS DOWN AND SERIOUSLY INJURES TOT

Beatrice Kaminsky, three years old, of No. 28 Medford street, Revere, was seriously injured in front of her home when an auto, a touring car owned and operated by Gilbert Teer, of No. 21 Lawrence street, Revere, struck her. She was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital by Patrolman Swankowsky of No. 22 Medford street, Chelsea. Her name was placed on the danger list.

WILSON INSISTS DAVIS HAS GOOD LABOR RECORD

Washington, August 8 (Universal)—In a rejoinder to the reply of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to his original letter, former Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson made a further effort to show that John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee, has a better labor record than Senator Robert M. La Follette, Independent progressive candidate.

Wilson's first communication to Gompers sought to restrain the executive council of the American Federation of Labor from endorsing La Follette. His appeal was rejected, Gompers disputing Davis' labor record in his reply. In his rejoinder Wilson says:

"So far as Senator La Follette's labor record dealing with domestic affairs is concerned, he is entitled to a clean bill of health at the hands of the American labor movement, but as you point out in your own statement that does not apply to his attitude on foreign relations.

"The record maintained by the American Federation of Labor shows that during Mr. Davis' congressional career he never voted in a single instance unfavorable to labor. Consequently, I agree with that he also was entitled to a clean bill of health on the points of domestic policies, and on the article concerning foreign relations is in accord with that of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Davis is entitled to the endorsement of labor on that question also."

Klan Cannot Survive, Declares La Follette

Washington, Aug. 8.—Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, Independent candidate for President today made public today, declared he unalterably opposed to the evident purposes of the Ku Klux Klan as disclosed by its public acts.

"It cannot long survive," insisted the Senator.

Senator La Follette declared at the outset of his letter that the most dominant, all-embracing issue in this campaign is to break the control over the political and economic life of the American people.

"This power," he continued, "controls every important branch of industry—mining, manufacturing, and transportation. It controls markets and credits and dictates the price of every product necessary to feed, clothe, warm and shelter the human family. To control that which makes life is to control life itself. This is economic slavery. Free government cannot long exist side by side with economic despotism."

27 Motorists Fined $400

In Lynn District Court twenty-seven motorists found guilty of various violations of the automobile laws were fined a total of $400. This established a record for that court.

Insane War Hero's Mother Sues U. S. on War Risk Policy

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 8. (Universal)—A novel suit was filed in Federal Court here by Mrs. Eva Sudock, widowed mother of six minor children and conservator of her eldest son, Carl, a hero of the World War. Confined at the State Hospital for the Insane at Middletown.

She is seeking compensation on an insurance policy amounting to a monthly payment to her of $37.50.

The government is defendant. A policy issued by it for $10,000 for permanent disability is the bone of contention.

The War Risk Bureau cancelled the policy and monthly allowance after Sudock had neglected to pay premiums.

BANDITS SLAY RICH MAN IN HOLDUP

Chicago, Aug. 8 (Universal)—Mayor Oppenheimer, wealthy merchant, was shot to death by bandits who were holding up his guest, Arthur Goldblatt. The shooting occurred in front of the Oppenheimer home and the coroner's inquest has failed to find a trace of his wife.

The bandits then fled, after robbing Goldblatt's pockets and escaped in the darkness.

Half an hour later a negro was wounded by a police officer who caught two men holding up Isadore Hirsch, a short distance from the Oppenheimer home.

The wounded man escaped, but later the body of a negro, identified as that of Fred Camel, was found on the porch of his home, a bullet wound in his abdomen. The calibre of the bullet, it was said, was the same as that fired from the police officer's revolver.

Authorities are trying to link the slaying of Camel with the Goldblatt holdup and the murder of Oppenheimer.

COLLISION WITH BIG TRUCK

Woman Patient and Orderly Hurt in Front of Brighton Police Station

Two persons were injured and an ambulance of the Massachusetts General Hospital was wrecked today when it collided with a heavy truck owned by Walsh Brothers & Bond Company in front of the Brighton Police Station.

The injured persons were Mrs. Nellie Sullivan, forty, of No. 125 Nonantum street, Brighton, who was being taken to the hospital. She is suffering from shock and a slight cut on the head.

Fred Smith, twenty-five, an ambulance orderly riding in the rear of the ambulance, received multiple burns on face and knee. Both of the victims were transferred from the ambulance to the police ambulance of the Brighton station and brought into the Massachusetts General Hospital.

According to witnesses the accident was unavoidable. It occurred when the truck turned from Washington street on to Brighton avenue.

The ambulance was operated by Walter H. Harris of Cottage street, Cambridge. The truck was in charge of James Lee, 145 Austin street, Newtonville. Neither of the operators were injured.

LABOR TO ACT ON SUSPENSION OF WALSH

Delegates at the closing session today of the State convention of the American Federation of Labor are expected to act on the suspension of their retiring president, William Walsh, from membership in the Boston Street Car Men's Union.

Word of the suspension reached the convention hall on St. Botolph street just after adoption of a resolution instructing the incoming executive committee to purchase a suitable gift for Walsh for his long work during his two years as president of the State organization.

Orders suspending Walsh from the Carmen's union came from the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railways Employes of America, now in national convention in Detroit.

It is understood the charges on which the suspension are based are that Walsh insulted James H. Roarty, representative of the city, and Joseph A. F. Lee, at a meeting of the union.

When William D. Mahon, national president, came from Detroit to Boston to investigate the trouble, Walsh said to have made verbal charges against Roarty, but refused to put them in writing.

The beginning of the trouble is said to have been a year ago when Walsh was defeated for re-election as business agent of the Boston Carmen's Union. Members of the Union say that since then he has been a "trouble maker."

Dawes Attacked in A. F. of L. Council

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 8.—Spies within the labor movement, intrigue-disputes, and politics divided the time of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in session at the Hotel Ambassador.

Under the heading of politics came attacks upon Charles G. Dawes as an enemy of organized labor, and on the report of the research council of Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America protesting a Labor party, and a declaration to give out the correspondence between Samuel Gompers and John W. Davis.

Refusing to give out the latter, Matthew Woll, spokesman for the Federation, said that the correspondence must come from Mr. Davis if anybody.

"For us to give it out on top of the letter of Mr. Gompers to Mr. Davis, made public last night," said he, "would make it appear that we are making a drive upon him alone. That is not the case."

HELD AS TIRE THIEVES AFTER WILD CHASE

Roland H. Farmer, twenty-two, of No. 15 Partridge avenue, Somerville, and Philip Ferro, of No. 1216 Pelham street, Malden, were arraigned in Malden Court today charged with the larceny of automobile tires. Bail was fixed at $500 each.

There arose marked the successful conclusion of a considerable tire hunt, which followed a dash in Malden square that included several fusillade patrons into interest.

For more than the A. H.-to police have been receiving complaints of the larceny of accessories from cars parked in front of the Medford Theatre, in Medford square, at night.

The latter that a week Patrolman John Cronin has been on watch every night from the Medford Cemetery across the street. Last night he saw two young men drive up in Duke of the theatre. Getting out, they unstrapped a tire from a parked machine and threw it into the rear of their car.

Cronin ran across the street, and jumping on the running board of the car, ordered the driver to "move on." Farmer, who followed closely in Malden square, that is some-sound Tenaire patrons into interest.

When William D. Mahon, national president, came from Detroit to Boston to investigate the trouble, Walsh said to have made verbal charges against Roarty, but refused to put them in writing.

The beginning of the trouble is said to have been a year ago when Walsh was defeated for re-election as business agent of the Boston Carmen's Union. Members of the Union say that since then he has been a "trouble maker."

EVERETT WORLD WAR VET IS REPORTED MISSING

12 MEN SEIZED WITH FORGED U. S. PASSPORTS

Paris, Aug. 8.—At the request of the American Consul-General, the Paris police have arrested twelve men from Italy carrying false passports, obtained, the prisoners said, from an association at Naples for 1,250 lire each. They were assured, they said, the documents would get them across to the United States.

TEXTILE MILLS OF N. E. BEGIN TO BOOM

Fall River, Aug. 8.—Officials of the American Printing Company announced that the cotton division comprising seven mills and employing about 4,000 operatives, will resume operations next week.

The announcement said special stress on the fact that this include mills Numbers 6 and 7.

The company's officials state that as the mill at Kingsport, Tenn., is set to be constructed, it will be some time before the machinery of the two latter mills will be removed.

The printing division, which has been closed for over a week, will remain closed the coming week.

Williamstown, Aug. 8.—After having been closed for several months because of the recent business depression, the John S. Boyd corduroy mill here resumed operations. While no official announcement was made by the company, it is understood sufficient orders have been received to guarantee the operation of the mill on full time indefinitely.

Biddeford, Aug. 8.—Announcement was made by the management of the Pepperell mills that until further notice the broad looms, idle for some weeks, would be operated four days a week. The narrow looms, it is announced, will run four days a week instead of three.

TILDEN AND JOHNSTON NAMED FOR DAVIS CUP TEAM

WINNERS HERE MAY BE PLACED

William T. Tilden, national champion, and William M. Johnston, former national champion, will form the nucleus of the United States Davis Cup team which will defend the trophy this season.

This official announcement was made at the home of Vincent Richards, the selection and Davis Cup committee and telegrams despatched to the players giving the decision of the committee.

Two additional players to complete the team will be selected following the national doubles championship at Longwood August 18 to 22. Three players will be selected from the following American stars:

Vincent Richards, Francis T. Hunter, R. Norris Williams 2d, Watson Washburn, Howard Kinsey, Robert Kinsey and C. J. Griffin.

From the four players eventually named the doubles team will be selected, and the definite final selection will not be made until the day before the match, which will be one or two, respectively, five years, and between them have held the national singles championship for the same period.

Both have been members of the United States Davis Cup teams since 1920, and it was these players who regained the Davis Cup from Australasia in the challenge round four years ago. They won all four singles matches and the doubles with a clean sweep against Norman E. Brookes and Gerald L. Patterson, both of whom are in this country as members of the present Australian Davis Cup team.

The announcement that Tilden and Little Bill" have been selected to play for the Pittsburgh challenge round will bring a thrill to every tennis devotee in the land. At present it would appear that either the Australasian Branch team will be the runners-up.

25,000 PEOPLE EXPECTED AT GIBBONS BOUT

By HAYDEN TALBOT.

London, August 8.—If I am not stricken with paralysis between now and Saturday, I will win this fight.

Tommy Gibbons grimmingly registered this sententious summing up of the probable result of his coming contest with Jack Bloomfield when I found the London Contender on his way to watch the final training this afternoon.

Having seen the English Hebrew in several of his most recent contests I should say that Gibbons is fairly safe in making this prophecy.

In the meantime, Joe Bibby, promoter of England's greatest field day boxing contests, is counting on 25,000 people entering the gates, although while some may refuse from $1 to $15 it will be nothing compared to an ordinary "gate" at Madison Square Garden in New York. But if his expectations are realized it will mean a renaissance for the boxing game in England.

Attendance records are set during the above workout, confining on lookers that he is in the fittest possible shape. His right hand is severely punished the pounding but and his speed is forward improved the association with the elevenses which enabled him to last fifteen rounds with Jack Dempsey.

The Boston American nine and the Medford City Club will clash in the second game of a three-game series tonight at Tufts Park, Medford. With the American brigade fattened to win the combat the Medford ball tossers are out to put over the unexpected.

When Oscar Fleischer and Eric Laird toss the mound for their respective teams, competition should be keen and the game will probably develope into a strided pitching duel, with victory going to the team that can crash out timely blows.

FIVE GAMES HERE FOR CUBS AT BRAVES FIELD

The Cubs will be at Braves Field this afternoon to open a five-game series to be played in four days.

The double-header is on the program for tomorrow, the first game to be started at 1:30.

In connection with the doubleheader, which is a regularly scheduled affair, there will be some special features, "Gabby" Hartnett of Cubs and Tim McNamara of the Braves, both of whom hail from Millville, will be honored by their fellow-townsmen. Another delegation will come from Worcester, the home of Arnold Statz, to pay their respects to the Chicago outfielder.

ROSS YOUNG TO JOIN GIANTS SHORTLY

New York, Aug. 8.—Ross Young, regular right fielder of the New York Nationals, was discharged today from St. Bartholomew's Hospital, where the player has been treated for the past fortnight for internal disorder. Young was treated without the necessity of an operation. The player expects to rejoin the Giants when they leave for their last Western trip next week.

Kelly and Jackson, two other cripples, are expected to return to the lineup during the Cincinnati series.

CANADIAN AND U. S. COLLEGES PLAN BOUTS

Montreal, Aug. 8.—McGill, Toronto and Queens Universities in Canada, and Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania Universities in the United States will be asked to compete in an international interscholastic boxing tournament at Oxford, England, in 1924, according to announcement here by J. A. Reynolds, secretary of the Oxford University Boxing Club, now in Canada to visit relatives. He is here to visit the heads of these universities and attempt to arrange the proposed meetings.

FRENCH TENNIS TEAM READY FOR TRIP HERE

Paris, Aug. 8.—The French Davis Cup team going to the United States to meet the winner of the finals in the American zone competition for the world's lawn tennis trophy will be composed of Jean Borotra, Jean Jacques Brugnon and Rene Lacoste. The team will sail soon on the steamer Paris. Henri Cochet has found it impossible to make the trip.

Sande Still Hopes That He Will Ride Again

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 7.—Earl Sande, injured jockey, is resting comfortably in a hospital here, and is doing as well as can be expected, his physicians said today.

An X-ray of the broken leg reveals a clean break a little above the knee and another clean break six inches higher. Above the upper break there is a splintered condition. The hip joint is uninjured, however.

Sande was put under ether and Dr. James Russell of the Roosevelt Hospital, New York city, manipulated the injured parts into place, and after two hours of delicate work the whole leg was encased in splints.

A weight of 16 pounds was attached to prevent shortening of the leg as it heals. The jockey remarked, after he heard of the general belief that his riding days were over.

"I'll fool them all. I'll ride again."

FAST RACING WITNESSED AT NORWICH

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 8.—Billy Flemming again witnessed victory here Guesswork beat a strong second bunch of adversaries in the $2,000 stake for 2:18 pacers. The winner was in rare form and won in straight heats. Blue Jay, six three-year-old trotter, won the stake for youngsters of that age.

Plain Mary won the 2:25 class trot after six of the hardest heats raced on the circuit this Summer. Dorace Frisco and Mannwah were both heat winners, but the mare with the popular name proved to be the gamest of the three, and although Billy Flemming, by consent of judges, drove Dorace Frisco the final heat, he failed to win the laurels.

The meeting will close this afternoon with the racing of the 2:14 trot, the 2:17 and 2:19 pacing events, the latter class to be a three-quarter mile affair.

MALONE MUST WAIT TO GET WILSON GO

By JACK CONWAY

THERE will not be a return bout between Johnny Wilson and Jock Malone for several months, under any circumstances. Possibly this contest will never take place.

Wilson has signed for matches which will keep him busy until the latter part of September. This makes a return engagement with Malone out of the question.

A Wilson-Malone contest would be even a greater attraction right now than it was when the men met recently. Wilson probably realizes this as well as anybody else. Prior engagements, however, will keep him busy.

The former middleweight king says if he ever meets Malone again he will make the round in which he will knock the st. Paul boxer out.

Malone probably regards this compliment when he reads the statement. There are many keen judges of boxing who figure that if Wilson and Malone ever meet again Jock will win.

What is your opinion?

MATCHMAKER Bob McGrady is not much concerned over the fact that we stated in this column that Hambone Kelly knocked out Wolf Larson. It appears that Kelly is boxing for the Lynn Commercial Club next week, while Hambone is booked to perform at a Revere field show. McGrady says if this writer would state that Robinson once knocked out Hambone Kelly in three rounds, We pledge ourself with McGrady's report.

McGrady didn't ask us to publish the fact that Robinson was recently knocked out in ten rounds by Jeff Smith.

PROMOTERS are apt to get unduly excited about what is written about men whom they are using in their boxing shows. Personally this writer does not believe the public cares a great deal whether boxers have been knocked out or defeated in the past. The question is simply as to whether a certain boxer has real ability.

Nobody questions the fighting qualities of Larsen, Holman or Jamieson. These men always give everything they have in the way of fighting ability.

If promoters gave more of their attention to arranging attractive cards and less time to trying to edit newspapers, they would probably be more prosperous as well as more peaceful of mind. Newspapers are not supposed to print information from the public. Therefore, promoters will please pardon us when we continue to use our discretion in the news as it is and not as promoters wish it colored, and this statement applies to every boxing club in New England.

THERE are more petty jealousies in the boxing game than in any other business we cannot use the word sports with the possible exception of the theatrical profession. Here fighters are grieved when sport writers refuse to see good about their ratings. Promoters are meanwhile clamoring for valuable newspaper space for shows in which nobody but themselves are interested. Possibly some day conditions will change. This will happen in the opinion of the writer when there is no boxing game.

MANSFIELD POST ARRANGING DAY

The James J. Mansfield Post, No. 158, American Legion, of Concord, is making plans for its fourth annual field day, to be held on the Concord Center playground, Labor Day, Sept. 1. One of the big attractions features will be the initial game of the series between the Concord Tigers and the Concord Juniors, champions of the town diamond championship of the town. Many other athletic events are planned.

QUAKER CITY TENNIS STAR TO PLAY HERE

Philadelphia, Aug. 8.—Richard N. Williams 2d, national of the American Olympic tennis team, who has been under treatment for torn ligaments in his foot, will be able to play in the coming national doubles championships August 18 in Boston, physicians announced today.

Williams has sent in his entry with mate of Watson M. Washburn, who would no has played for several years.

LANDIS AND HEYDLER WATCH GIANTS PLAY

Judge Landis, assisted by President Heydler, watched the Giants-Phillies game at the Polo Grounds. There was nothing significant in their visit, they explained. It was more in the nature of a social call. They occupied the royal box.

SHIMIZU AND OKAMO ON JAPS' DAVIS CUP SQUAD

Montreal, Aug. 8.—Zenzo Shimizu, veteran Japanese tennis star, and Sunao Okamo, champion of Bengal, were named to represent Japan in the singles matches of the Davis Cup opening here tomorrow.

Pat Donaghue, Son of Steve, Strives to Be Jockey

Salisbury, Eng., Aug. 8.—In stead of the old familiar slogan of "Come on Steve" being heard on the race course here recently, a new cry of "Come on Pat" was heard in its place. Thespectators were calling for Patrick Donoghue, son of Steve Donoghue, one of England's foremost jockeys, who was making his first appearance in public as a jockey.

Young Donoghue is only thirteen years old and weighs seventy pounds and it is the intention of his father that Pat shall follow in his footsteps if he takes well to racing. In his first race the youngster rode against his father and finished fifth, Steve being beaten by a short head for the first place.

ROBINSON HAS FINE RECORD AS PUNCHER

Wicked punchers mean nothing to George Robinson of Cambridge and the popular Market champion expects to add another triumph to his list next Monday night at the Dewton Arena, where he clashes with Tommy Robson of Malden.

Robinson is considered the tough out nut in his class. He has met all the headliners, Johnny Wilson, Jack Delaney, Kid Norfolk and Tiger Flowers.

Fans have not forgotten Robinson's last fight here against Jack Delaney. Robinson gave Jack the battle of his career. Robinson also has a three-round K. O. victory over Hambone Kelly.

Johnny Wilson, who recently knocked out Jock Malone, has three times failed to whip Robinson, but none of these men claim the wallop that Robinson can exhibit.

Second in interest will be the bat tle between Pat McCarthy of Roxbury and Wolf Larson, the Dane puncher of Norway.

50-MILE TITLE RACE AT REVERE SATURDAY

The 1924 American speed cycling championship will be decided in a series of ten races to be held on bike tracks throughout the East. Saturday night the first of these races minted the Revere oval will be staged.

Saturday's 50-mile championship contest has attracted the greatest field both in quantity and quality in the history of bike racing. The reason is that this year riders from foreign countries are eligible to compete.

Three American riders will be in the contest. They are Clarence Carman of George Chapman, present champion and fourtime winner of the title; Clarence Carman, former champion on two occasions, and Franklin Keenan, one of the present day stars.

Italy, Belgium and France are the foreign countries represented. Vincent Madonna, already the winner of the first of the series and leader in points scored, will wear the Italian flag on his racing shirt. Henri Wynsdau is the Belgian representative, while Marcel Dobruer will sport the tricolor of France.

A three-heat tandem match will find Carl Stockholm and Joe Reeber paired up against the McKenzie brothers. The Revere brothers have had wonderful success riding as a tandem.

AMATEUR TOURNAMENT FOR WEBSTER FANS

Webster, Aug. 8.—The amateur boxers of Worcester county will get another chance to show their speed when Webster fans when Joe Marcuccy will stage his third amateur boxing tournament of the season at Marcuccy's Park on August 23.

Amateur boxers from several New England cities and towns will compete and the tourney should be the largest of its kind ever conducted in Worcester County.

Watch this paper for the unfolding of an amazing series of motor car demonstrations. Nothing like them ever attempted. What will they be?

JACK QUINN'S RELIEF PITCHING SAVES BACON FOR RED SOX

HEILMANN HURT; FOHL JEERED

Out of the barrel at last.

Moe got rid of the old jinx yesterday and slapped a pretty grand note on Spic and Span, receiving even money for his jack.

It was such an easy exercise gallop for Spic and Span that Moe figures he will be sent right back again today and the plunger is going to string along with him.

He steps in the fifth race and Willie Cook will step with him.

The bank roll today is $11,855.21.

LAST NIGHT ON THE AIR BY 'LISTENER'

For a night of extreme humidity and high temperature, conditions could have been much worse than they really were. One naturally looks for heavy crashing static this kind of weather. If it fails to make its appearance, you sort of wonder what has gone wrong with the scheme of things. And yet last night, in spite of the sweat-producing waves which blew through the streets, the waves throughout the radio realm seemed particularly free from any foreign matter except the programs they carried.

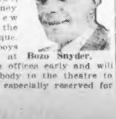
In gazing in on WNAC, I heard Max I. Kruse's excellent orchestra broadcasting from the roof garden of the Hotel Westminster. Judging from the side-noises which entered the microphone while the orchestra was between numbers, it was clearly evident that there were cool places to go besides in the country. This orchestra ranks among the highest, for smoothness and faithful reproduction over the radio.

Shortly after nine o'clock, WBF, the United Fruit Company's code station on the Board of Trade Building, opened up and called a vessel at sea. This hooked into WBZ's program somewhat.

I have often heard it was possible to get music out of a drinking goblet, but from WBZ last evening, I heard such music through my radio. The announcer explained how it was accomplished, but I didn't get the details until after the selections had commenced. To most people, not told before-hand what it was going to be, I suppose it would sound quite like the music of a big pipe organ. This is truly one kind of cheer which cometh from the goblet, that Prohibition cannot effect.

BOZO SNYDER HOST TO AMERICAN'S NEWSBOYS

Next Monday evening will be a memorable event for the scores of newsboys who sell the Boston American. For on that evening they will attend Waldron's Casino as guests of Bozo Snyder, star of Barney Gerard's new "Follies of the Day" burlesque. The newsboys will gather at Bozo Snyder, the American offices early and will march in a body to the theatre to occupy seats especially reserved for them.



HOW RADIO NOISES WERE LOCATED

"LISTENER" ON THE JOB

Finding the radio interference which has seriously bothered Braintree fans was a relatively simple matter of taking loop bearings from various locations. How these bearings indicated the telephone exchange is shown in the diagram. As the set and loud speaker were brought near the exchange, the interfering noise grew so loud as to paralyze the tubes. The upper photo shows how the bearings were taken.

BOSTON TO SEE AUDION FOR FIRST TIME

The first local public exhibition of Dr. Lee DeForest's Audion will be given at the Fenway theatre next week, when this unusual and mysterious invention will be shown as a part of the regular Fenway show.

The DeForest Audion makes possible radio broadcasting and receiving, long distance telephony, picture telegraphy, and now talking motion pictures, with an attachment for an ordinary motion picture projection machine, which converts light waves into sun waves and puts the voice into the movies.

It is this feature of the Audion which will be shown at the Fenway.

1500 AT OUTING OF THE HOOD EMPLOYES

More than 1,500 employes of the H. P. Hood Milk company from its twenty-six branch offices in New England attended the twenty-first annual outing of the H. P. Hood Mutual Benefit Association held at Nantasket.

It was one of the largest affairs ever held by the Hood concern. Charles H. Hood, president of the concern, spoke at the dinner held at McKinney's Shore Gardens.

Mr. Hood said:

"In coming here to meet the members of our mutual benefit association I feel that I am again at headquarters with much pleasure, and here I meet many, and I am sure I behold to find this year it is larger and better than ever before. The witness and you all deserve much credit for the way you have organized and the excellent work that you have done during the past year.

"If we look back a bit we find the Mutual Benefit Association was organized in a small way twenty-one years ago, and from that day to this it has never failed to help a member in sickness.

"During that time it has paid to the members $20,000 in relief and to the families of members who have died $20,000. We have heard of instances where this money coming to families at a critical time was very, very much appreciated."

One of the most active workers of the day was H. P. Soderholm, manager of the Lynn branch of the Hood concern and leader of the Lynn branch baseball team.

Joseph W. Eagan of the Charlestown branch was in charge of the sporting events, and the committee in charge of the outing included H. F. Soderholm, Lynn; T. F. Gregson, Charlestown; J. J. Dineen, Dorchester; Charles Weldon, A. L. Boutin, Salem; F. S. Julian, Charlestown; T. C. Taylor and H. Robins.

PLYMOUTH-BROCKTON CARS RUNNING AGAIN

Plymouth, Aug. 8.—Vice-President C. W. Gifford of the Plymouth & Brockton Street Railway Company, which discontinued through service July 5, announces the reopening of the road today. The company has filed with the Public Utilities Commission a new tariff, revising the fare limits. Special provisions are made for working trips, with little or no increase in the rate of fare.

FAMOUS FIRSTS

By Mark Stuyvesant

The scientific mind the ne[w] house is always a challenge. After Peary reached the North Pole on April 6, 1909, the interest of explorers and of the whole scientific world centered upon the South Pole and its vast surrounding region which has become the last unexplored immensity of the earth.

Among those who made unsuccessful attempts to reach the South Pole were Lieutenant Wilkes of the United States Navy, and Lieutenant Charchman, a Portuguese officer, but they did not reach far enough to add to our knowledge of the South Pole, and it remained for Scott to discover it.

Captain Roald Amundsen, a brave Norwegian sailor, had made preparations for years to reach America's Arctic neighbor. In 1903 he found through the Northwest Passage, at the top of North America, and was preparing to make a dash for the North Pole when he learned that it had been discovered by Peary.

He then turned his attention to the south pole and on January 11, 1911 landed with nine companions on the Bay of Whales, which is the only land route to the pole. Here he established a base for the last two years' campaign.

He did not race some time Captain Scott, a valiant Englishman, organized his crew for the race to the pole. He learned that Amundsen was preparing for a dash to the South Pole.

As soon as he was comfortably housed at the Bay of Whales Captain Amundsen began taking out supplies south and leaving them there for future use. When the Spring came, early in November, 1911, the Amundsen party started south on October 24, 1911.

One week later Captain Scott's dash for the pole began. It is interesting to contrast the simultaneous efforts of these two men and their brave companions all trying for the same goal, one party dressed in garments against the other in specially made Arctic clothing.

The Norwegians had the advantage of luck and weather. Also it must be admitted that Captain Amundsen planned on an epic like dash for the pole and Captain Scott for dogs are better travelers on sea and snow. Also, he and his men used Norwegian skis, of which the all Norwegians they had been experts at home since childhood. They found food in plenty and good weather and though the mountain range was nearly impassable, they crossed it. On December 11, 1911, their observations proved them to be very close to the Pole which they reached December 14, 1911.

From Captain Scott's fascinating diary record of his trip, we learn that he found Captain Amundsen's tent and records still there, proving that the Norwegians had discovered the South Pole and that he had started his homeward trip.

Captain Scott's party, on their return journey, were overwhelmed by desperate storms and perished of cold and starvation.

DEAD TALK

"Oh, Susie, I met the handsomest man you ever saw at the ball last night. He wore a black bow tie and a dress suit without any fur on the coat. Whaddya think of that?"

"Get out of bed, Josh, it's 6 o'clock and time to work. How you can sleep here late in the morning like this while I'm out doin' all the chores and helpin' your ma get breakfast?"

"You can't have the buggy this afternoon, Jim. Your brother wants to take his girl ridin'. If you work real hard this week I might let you take it next Sunday."

"We're thinking seriously of moving back to the country this Summer. It's so expensive to live here in the city. Why, there's not a grocery store in the neighborhood where you can buy butter for thirty cents a pound."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. F. X. Mahoney
Boston Health Commissioner

"MAD dog!"

The time draws near for the perennial cry.

A dog acts it seems to children get [illegible] crowd takes up the shout.

And the dog may or may not be mad. The symptoms of rabies can only be accurately determined in the laboratory.

A number of popular fallacies exist concerning the appearance of this disease. It is called hydrophobia, which means fear of water, a term that, strictly speaking, does not describe the condition of rabies in animals.

A dog with rabies is not afraid of water and may wade, or swim if necessary, to the first and second stages of the disease. Neither does he always froth at the mouth, nor in the early stages run around trying to bite every one.

A dog may have dumb rabies, and in this case generally cannot bite. The danger of infection, however, is from the saliva.

Despite the animal scares that are frequently exaggerated, there is ample for real caution in the matter. If a dog bites you and you suspect his condition, go to a doctor and get the Pasteur treatment.

If you are bitten in the face, begin to take the treatment immediately, because the danger to the brain, is more dangerous is the bite.

An old fashioned does not usually develop for ten days or a month, and by giving the vaccination a chance to work it does not take the medicine treatment. Delay lessens the time in which the vaccination may be used and strengthens the disease of the bite is really found to have been from a rabid dog.

If you have a dog or catch him during the hot season and keep him away from other dogs as much as possible. One mad dog may bite a great many animals and infect many abroad rapidly.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Answer to "No Signature, Boston."—I think your weight is about right for your height. You might try sweet, pure cold cream for your face. Plenty of milk and cream will help to restore your color and very likely your face will fill out also as you gain in weight.

I am going West in a few weeks. Would you advise me to be vaccinated?—You have been vaccinated for twenty years.

(Signed) M. H. A. L., Boston.

Persons going West at this time should do so by recommendation as there is at the present time some smallpox throughout the West.

Boy Would Help Family

Helping Hand Editor:

Can you help me secure a position for a young boy 16 years of age, height and large for his age. The mother has been working but now is sick and they need help. We live and do a little, but do not just know where to locate a position. He has 3 brothers and sisters, all younger. Is a fine lad and would try his best to please. Thank you for any help gratefully for all your help last Winter. Trusting you can help us out.

MRS. R. A. J.

$1 For Mrs. L. C. 6

Helping Hand Editor:

Enclosed find $1 for Mrs. L. C. 6, which like to see a hand started for her. Could send some patch work pieces to Mrs. L. A. S. 6 and if in. If you will send her address. Have a couple of Winter coats to fit girls about 14-18 years. Also have clothes for the mother of 8 or 9 children who can alter so make over. This is a good work to help for the many in need.

MRS. A. D. R.

Thank you for the donation and address of Mrs. L. A. S. Mrs. L. A. S. has been very generously supplied we are asking that you send patchwork pieces to Mrs. J. W.

Mother and Babe Need Home

Helping Hand Editor:

Can you help me find a real home with an American family; where they will treat me as one of the family and could take care of my baby boy through the day? I cannot pay the price people want to board him out and as I am all alone, I want my baby with me. I could furnish my own room, baby has his own crib and also a stroller. He is 16 months' old and a very nice baby. I could pay over $7 a week for the two of us, but would be willing to help around the house after and work.

MRS. E. T.

We tret the generous reader who can give you into her home until he the real helping hand and we with you luck.

Woman's Suit and Clothes

Helping Hand Editor:

I will be glad to give a woman's suit and some shoes to someone who can wear No. 5½, and shoes size 5½. These things belong to my oldest girl 17 years who works, but who has outgrown them and as next girl to her is only 3 years old, someone might as well get the benefit of them now.

MRS. T. A. E.

Many thanks. We are sending you the address of Mrs. J. C., mother of six, and one of her girls can very nicely use the clothes you so kindly offer.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

It is admitted that a lull in the building of new homes has set in.

What can be done to offset this, particularly in the way of providing employment for workers?

Several things.

You may recall that when the home-building boom attained a furious pace Secretary of Commerce Hoover came out publicly with a statement favoring the delaying of construction of Federal, State and Municipal buildings and all other such like work which could be held over. That recommendation was eminently sensible, for material prices had soared to excessive heights and wages in the building trades were being forced up out of line with wages received by workers in other industries.

But conditions are now undergoing a change.

The slackened demand and the prospect of materially reduced movement of activity have already had quite an effect upon building materials. An important lumber importer and jobber told me within the other day that prices had dropped about $5 per thousand feet, or fully 25 per cent. Cement prices are also quoted lower. A recent maximum, notwithstanding that this industry is organized more thoroughly than most industries and is not notorious for price cutting wars, to say the least. Brick manufacturers, I understand, had to come down. Even hardware, builders' goods, paints, nails, of course, iron and steel prices have fallen very substantially now, which was not the case a year ago, quoted at $2[illegible], while steel billets have dropped from $47.50 to $38 within the last twelve months.

Although building wages have not been officially reduced, the fancy premiums which were so common a while ago are less common now. Moreover, the acute scarcity of unskilled help has passed, at least in most centers. Not only so, but there is now less unemployment in a number of industries, and it would be helpful if the building trade could absorb some of those now idle.

Has the time not come for Secretary Hoover to do everything within his power to stimulate the letting off in home-building following by resumption of construction of public buildings?

Could not road-building, which has been held up by the scarcity of labor and excessive costs, also be taken in more aggressively?

Also, many business concerns have postponed construction of factories, warehouses, etc., because of the unfavorable situation for material and men, caused by home building.

Now that the pressure for both men and materials is relaxing, would it not be timely to inaugurate an increased program of business building, especially as the almost unanimous opinion seems to be that business is headed for a period of decidedly greater activity?

The report of the committee on seasonal operation in the construction industries, appointed by Secretary Hoover as the outgrowth of the President's conference on unemployment, attempts to explain why the construction of homes has developed a scarcity of men in the building trades at that moment, but has not been regularly throughout the year, as in the case of the months of idleness during the Winter. The experts declare that this seasonal irregularity can be greatly reduced by proper planning.

Is it not important that steps ever can be done should be done so that the diminution in home-building this Winter may be counterbalanced as far as practicable by construction of public buildings, roads, factory buildings and so forth.

The building industry plays such an important part in bringing about general prosperity that no stone should be left unturned to put it on the most sensible and economical basis. Any effort to be made to meet the conditions likely to arise from the falling off in building of homes, the prosperity of business and labor may be affected.

It is all right to be optimistic over the general business outlook, but it would be more helpful to let any step designed to insure the actual materialization of optimistic promises.

SON-IN-LAW OF COHAN SELLS HIS SEAT

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

I see that George M. Cohan's son-in-law, J. William Soulter, has just sold his seat on the New York Stock Exchange. The price quoted was $41,000, which is the same as was paid on the occasion of the last previous sale.

George M. Cohan

The son-in-law of Boston's Dominie purchased his seat on March 24, 1921, and became associated with M. G. Meehan & Co. Mrs. Soulter is the daughter of Josephine Cohan and Edward Monroe Cohan, both long famed as theatrical stars.

I hear a story that Mr. Cohan's private charities put in the way of aiding former stage associates who have outlived their activity before the footlights are surprisingly large.

Of particular interest in New England are the latest figures on the shoe industry, made available through the U. S. Department of Commerce.

There was practically no change in the volume of exports of manufactures from the United States in the last fiscal year ending June 30, when 7,626,444 pairs were shipped to foreign countries, representing 1.62 per cent of the 472,482,862 pairs produced in the previous year, the department reports. However, there was a appreciable increase in value, amounting to 4.8 per cent, which would indicate that higher prices were received.

Comparisons of the different classifications show that the increase in men's and boys' shoes expanded considerably, but that this advantage was lost in the diminished shipments of women's footwear, so that, in the one being offset by the loss in the other. Exports of children's shoes registered no change. Slippers were less popular in our overseas market, and athletic shoes were more in demand, judging by the increase of 48,958 pairs of slippers exported and an advance of 6,887 pairs in the shipments of athletic types.

Cuba, our principal market, followed the general trend in its purchases, and the total exports recorded in 1923 over 1922 (1,305,144 more compared with 218,824 pairs) showed an increased quantity of rubber soled shoes, which are partially duplicated, but sales of women's shoes declined about half that extent. Canada and the United Kingdom has steadily increased its imports of women's shoes from the United States, as the purchases of men's shoes has fallen off somewhat.

That the clothing industry has been materially benefited by mobilization in the general opinion of the experts expressed in the official organ of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers. Hence the reason why the recent action of the former head of the United Garment Workers of America declares that the overcoming of their responsibility as well as the worker, knows that mobilization has stabilized the trade, increased employment, and created an unprecedented demand for goods of superior quality.

The shutting off of the legalized labor supply, he says, immediately diverted 2,000,000 men from boots to useful channels. To my knowledge more than 200 new factories were taken over by retail clothing and furnishing stores. High wages is giving the people the money, and the closing of the saloons has shown them how to use it.

ASSOCIATED OIL HAS INCREASED EARNINGS

Associated Oil for six months to June 30 reports surplus of $4,434,607 after all charges, interest, depreciation and depletion, equal to $1.98 a share over $2[illegible] or $3,600,000 earned in the first half of 1923, equivalent to $1.41 a share, on $35,735,725 stock now $2[illegible] in the first half of 1923.

TRACTIONS ARE IMPROVING

Electric railways generally travel on smoothly as the "come-back" trail and investors well may buy traction securities. Those widely known transportation men today declare, following a conference of executives from many parts of the country at Wellesley Hills.

The speakers were B. C. Cobb, of Hodenpyl, Hardy & Co.; F. R. Coates, Henry D. Doherty Company, and Henry Hunt, who is a live industrial, directed and managed by wide-awake progressive officials who are becoming aware of their responsibilities to the public and to the investor. The confidence of the public is returning, and the conviction that electric railways are an essential industry.

FEDERAL RESERVE IN N. Y. LOWERS RATE

Federal Reserve Bank of New York has cut rediscount rate from 3½ per cent to 3 per cent. Last previous action was June 27, when buying to continue for at least 60 to 3½ per cent. New York rate had previously been cut from 4 per cent to 4 per cent April 30.

The present status somewhat of a surprise coming Thursday, as it is the custom of directors to hold session each Wednesday. This is a new low on ninety-day paper since organization of the Federal Reserve System, and is one factor credited with bank rate rate in the world. No change was made in Boston rediscount rate.

QUOTATIONS MIXED IN GRAIN FUTURES

Quotations were mixed in grain futures, with wheat shaded and corn and oats higher. Prices: Wheat—Sept. 125¾ to 129, Dec. 132¾ to 133. May 137¾ to 139. Corn—Sept. 114¾, Dec. 104¾ to 105, May 105 to ¼. Oats—Sept. 49¼ to ¾, Dec. 51¾ to 52, May 54¾ to ⅞.

IMPROVEMENT IN RED METAL

Further improvement is apparent in copper in leading quarters of the trade. Inquiries are more numerous and the market has risen to 13¾ to 13⅞ cents, usual delivery terms, with some sellers holding for the latter figure.

Some good-sized sales were made in wire and sheet mills within the last few days on a rising market. Now business is growing in volume and prices are firmer.

Good-sized sales for export have resulted from inquiries for foreign account. Late deliveries are quoted at 13.12.45 cents f. a. s. New York harbor.

BALTIMORE & OHIO.

To M. I. T.—Baltimore & Ohio first 4s are the best of the bonds you mention. Would recommend its come in $500 pieces. We can readily approve of the purchase of this bond. It would also make a good investment for your sister's $500.

REASONABLE SAFETY.

To N. O. S.—Your letter brings up a question that we have had to consider from time to time, namely, basically, the misuse of the term "absolute safety." Listed bonds that come nearest to meeting an absolute safe are selling under present conditions to yield between 4 and 5 per cent., some of them even less than 4 per cent. when they also figure in full tax exemption. Apparently what you want is a bond of average soundness, like Louisville Gas and Electric 5s, 1952, yielding 5.8 per cent., or Northern States Power first and refunding 6s, 1941, yielding 5.7 per cent.

N. Y. TELEPHONE.

To L. P. P.—Since you want a security that is easily marketable and must have a good return we suggest New York Telephone 6½ per cent., preferred, selling on the Curb on about a 6 per cent. basis.

EXCHANGE.

To R. W. D.—If you were to exchange your holdings of Annaconda and Ray Consolidated for Allied Chemical and Dye preferred stock, no objection could be made. The amount you would be able to realize on the sale of your copper stocks would be about $5,500. It might be well to place $2,500 of this amount in Allied Chemical and Dye preferred and apportion the balance between American Tobacco preferred and North American preferred. We have made suggestions here for the reason that we are not advised as to how large an amount is represented in the balance of your investment.

LOCOMOTIVE SHIPMENTS ARE SLIGHTLY LOWER

July shipments of locomotives from manufacturing plants totaled 146, compared with 145 in June, and 225 in July, 1923. Unfilled orders on July 31 totaled 483 locomotives.

PRICES ARE LIFTED FOR COTTON FUTURES

New York cotton futures prices were lifted. October sold at 28.25, up 18 points; December 27.53, up 13; January 27.40, up 17.

Liberty Bond Prices

Liberty bond prices declined in light trading, 3½s, 101.8; first 4s, 101.8; second 4s, 101.7; first 4¼s, 102.14; second 4¼s, 101.22; third 4¼s, 102.16; fourth 4¼s, 102.18; treasury 4½s, 106 (new record high).

Let Everyone Do Honor to Members of the G. A. R.

Aurora Should Loan Cars for Use of Aged Soldier Visitors During Next Week's Convention

It is to be the pleasure and the privilege of the City of Boston to play host to the veterans of '61 next week, during the fifty-eighth national encampment of the G. A. R.

We are sure every citizen appreciates the privilege thus conferred upon his city.

When the veterans parade, on Tuesday next, it probably will be for the last time in Boston. For the eyes of the gallant old men are getting dimmer. The line of faded blue is getting thinner. Great cities compete for the privilege of doing them honor, in the few years that remain.

In Boston the Grand Army men will find themselves at home. Massachusetts was the first State to answer Lincoln's call in 1861. Throughout the war she never wavered in the will to crush rebellion and save America.

Mayor Curley has issued a proclamation containing several concrete and sensible suggestions. He asks that the city dress up in flags and bunting and colored draperies and appropriate insignia. He asks that private citizens supplement the official hospitality extended to the veterans by the city.

Specifically, he asks that owners of automobiles loan their cars for the use of the aged visitors. It is a suggestion that should be followed.

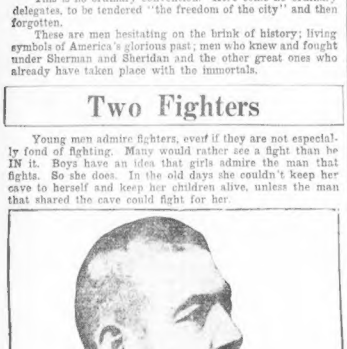
Approximately 10,000 veterans will be in the line of march on Tuesday. Not less than 30,000 visitors will be in the city.

This is no ordinary convention. Here come no ordinary delegates, to be tendered "the freedom of the city" and then forgotten.

These are men hesitating on the brink of history; living symbols of America's glorious past; men who knew and fought under Sherman and Sheridan and the other great ones who already have taken place with the immortals.

Two Fighters

Young men admire fighters, even if they are not especially fond of fighting. Many would rather see a fight than be IN it. Boys have an idea that girls admire the man that fights. So she does. In the old days she couldn't keep her cave to herself and keep her children alive, unless the man that shared the cave could fight for her.



JOHN L. SULLIVAN—one kind of a fighter

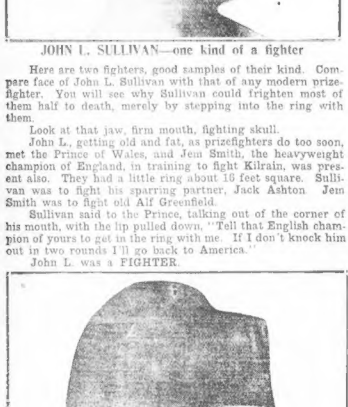
Here are two fighters, good samples of their kind. Compare face of John L. Sullivan with that of any modern prizefighter. You will see why Sullivan could frighten most of them half to death, merely by stepping into the ring with them.

Look at that jaw, firm mouth, fighting skull.

John L., getting old and fat, as prizefighters do too soon, met the Prince of Wales, and Jem Smith, the heavyweight champion of England, in training to fight Kilrain, was present also. They had a little ring about 16 feet square. Sullivan was to fight his sparring partner, Jack Ashton. Jem Smith was to fight old Alf Greenfield.

Sullivan said to the Prince, talking out of the corner of his mouth, with the lip pulled down, "Tell that English champion of yours to get in the ring with me. If I don't knock him out in two rounds I'll go back to America."

John L. was a FIGHTER.



NAPOLEON BONAPARTE, fighting general—another kind

Here is another fighter. His name is Napoleon Bonaparte, and his is also a fighting face. Cast in a finer mould, it s not unlike John L. Sullivan's in some ways. You see the same straight nose, the same fighting eye.

Both of these men were fighters; what was the DIFFERENCE between them? What was the quality that gives Napoleon, sleeping in his magnificent tomb under the gilt dome of the Paris Invalides, glorious immortality, and to John L. Sullivan, worn out and a reformed drunkard in the thirties, a grave that no one could locate, and a name that soon will pass?

It was a simple difference.

Napoleon was a THINKING fighter.

John L. Sullivan was a fighter that COULDN'T think.

You will observe, young gentlemen, that THINKING is considerably more important than FIGHTING—especially if you want to travel far and high, and be remembered when you die.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

Helen Rowland

To the Summer widower, the hardest part of being separated from his wife is the effort to look miserable and lonely enough to satisfy the neighbors.

It takes several Summers' practice for a man to wear a pair of white flannel trousers with the proper degree of nonchalance.

There may be "just as good fish in the sea" as ever were caught, but what good does that do a woman who has lived up the load of her hope in landing a matrimonial monster?

A girl will let a man flounder helplessly around trying to propose, but she never fails to respond to his S. O. S. at the psychological moment when he makes signs of giving up.

Wheeling is for a young and determined widow or a middle-aged citizen car; a man is equally terrified in either case, the poor boy knows that no matter which way he may dodge she is going to "get him."

* * *

Any clever salesgirl can sell a woman a hat she doesn't want merely by telling her that no one else is wearing is too "unseemly" for her.

Sometimes a man has an awful time trying to make enough noise around the house while his wife is away, to convince her that he has been "neglected" and lonesome.

A woman's impulse is never about her husband is roughly based on the theory that any brand of vanity is a worthy emplacement to brag about, so long as it be looked.

Summer love is like summer; you can neither eat nor sleep comfortably until it begins to wear off—but you always have the comforting assurance that it WILL subside in time.

At this dangerous season, a bachelor keeps his hand on his pulse and waits to see if he loses his appetite before he will admit that he has but the fever.

* * *

Among other accomplishments, just in the sand and holes discovered at this careless season is the human heart.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

The gain of lying is nothing else but not to be trusted of any, not to be believed when we say the truth.

If you are a master be sometimes blind; if a servant sometimes deaf.

Praise was originally a pension paid by the world.

Nothing is more simple than greatness; indeed, to be simple is to be great.

Never is work without reward, or reward without work.

The greater part of your troubles lies in your own imagination, and so you may free yourself from it when you please.

The musician by profession hears, in an mechanical performance every instrument, and every single tone, while one unacquainted with the art is grasped up in the massive effect of the whole.

There is no rule or catechism, or precedent, that is a good substitute for thinking.

A man's reputation draws eyes upon him that will narrowly inspect every part of him.

Revenge is always the pleasure of a little, weak and narrow mind.

THE HELPING HAND

Letters Not Answered Personally. No Attention Paid to Telephone Calls or Anonymous Letters. No Names Published.

Family Nearly Destitute

Helping Hand Editor:

Will some one please help me? I am a widow, have four children. My oldest boy is 17. Not strong. Has an auto license, but cannot find work. Have girl 15, boy 13, girl 10. We are destitute. I will do any kind of work, but look so old, cannot get any. My head troubles me quite a lot. Anything would be greatly appreciated.

R. E. G.

Mother of 10. Attention

Mrs. R. G. R., mother of ten, who wants a baby carriage, etc., please send editor your name. You omitted this in your letter, and a party wishes to communicate with you.

Grateful For Check

Helping Hand Editor:

I received the check and was very glad to get it. It is a very big help to me and my children. Please tell those people who helped me I can't express my thanks to them all. If I could tell you in words how glad I am at the bottom of my heart. There are a lot of people who are kind in this world to help all the poor people. God bless them all and you for helping me. I don't know how to thank you. MRS. L. C.

Makes Small Pay

Helping Hand Editor:

Could you help to secure some clothes for my six children. My husband is working for the city and makes such small pay that it just about provides food for the children. I am expecting my seventh child in four months and God only knows where the clothes are going to be got for it. My girls are, 11, 9, 8 and the boys are, 6, 4, 2. I wear 38, and size 5 shoe. My husband would greatly appreciate a pair of old shoes, size 5, and pants 38x30. Anything sent us will be highly appreciated to our fullest extent.

MRS. K. H.

Thanks For Crib

Helping Hand Editor:

I wish to thank the party and you for the crib and box I got yesterday. There was no name on it, so I cannot thank her personally. I hope you will thank her through your column. The baby seems so comfortable—it makes me so happy that I was lucky to get a crib so soon.

MRS. L. T.

Roxbury.

Mother of Six

Helping Hand Editor:

Would you help a poor woman with six children? My husband hasn't steady work. I would be glad to get anything that you give me. I would like clothes for the children, a boy 2, 3 and 9, girls 6, 10, 13 and 16. I thank you very much.

MRS. J. C.

Clothes for Girls

Helping Hand Editor:

I have some clothing for girls, 2, 3 and 6 years of age. I wish to dispose of it quickly.

MRS. M. McA

Thank you. We are sending you the address of Mrs. J. O'B., mother of 5 and whose husband is out of work.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

I WANT to build a house for you upon a sunny spot, where in the eaves, each summertime through, the wrens will come to nest. A little house with earth as white as are your dreams of bliss, where stars look down and smile by night and roses climb to kiss. I want to build a house for you, a house whose walls some day will ring with laughter, through and through, of little lads at play. But if my happy house of dreams should never greet the sun, nor silver in the white moonbeams when shining day is done, if tides of change my hopes undo and bear us seas apart, I still will build a house for you within my hungry heart!

DR. FRANK CRANE ON THE WORLD GOES ON

By DR. FRANK CRANE

IN spite of what we do the world goes on.

Men may come and men may go and each generation thinks that its interests are eternal; but the world has no interests that last except those that continue from generation to generation.

We have always had the conviction that Nature is more interested in the institution than in individuals.

That is why we have taken institutions so seriously, have contended for them and have been willing to fight for them.

Knowing that his time here is so short, man has always clutched greedily at the things which remain, has always builded his hopes around the permanencies.

It has always been his desire to find those satisfactions which are permanent.

In the end all moralities are nothing but the permanencies.

We often tell the young to save their money because we feel that capital is permanent, while the satisfactions of the moment are fleeting.

Therefore men give as sacrifice the pleasures of today for the more or less problematical joys of tomorrow.

There is such a thing as carrying this too far, as tomorrow may never come. A sane balance between the pleasures of today and those that are still to come is what is needed by the sane man.

It is the tendency of youth to see today only and to look upon old age as a negligible probability.

Against this tendency the experience of the old breaks itself in vain.

It has always been the desire of mankind to have the fulness and powers of youth together with the wisdom of old age. Unfortunately they do not go together.

We never learn how to live, nor the values of life, until we are ready to die and then it does us no good.

It is a singular thing that all men live as if they were to live forever, yet all men, some time or other, must die.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON PLANET JUPITER

By Garrett P. Serviss

WHILE watching Mars grow bigger and redder as he hastens to the post for his long-heralded "opposition" on August 23, don't forget to look at his greater brother Jupiter, the giant of our planetary family, who also is now traversing the evening sky, and heavily making his way toward the sunset, as if in hopeless chase of Venus, who dodged behind the sun, to escape into the morning twilight, on the first of July.

Jupiter is now close to the ecliptic, a few degrees northeast of the red star Antares in Scorpio and beautifully placed on the meridian, exactly in the south, immediately after sunset. At that time Mars is still under the eastern horizon.

Rich Silver

Jupiter's color is a rich-toned silver, and he shines with a brightness far exceeding that of any of the fixed stars, not even excepting Sirius. His low altitude facilitates observation with amateurs' telescopes.

His apparent diameter being now about 43 seconds of arc, a magnifying power of only 50 diameters is sufficient to present his huge disk in the field of the telescope with a width exceeding that of the full moon. But to see the details of his wonderful belts a power of 100 diameters is better.

One must be prepared with a little special knowledge in order fully to enjoy the telescopic spectacle of Jupiter. One must reflect that golden-hued, striped and spotted globe hanging before him (for in the telescope the all-very color is exchanged for a much richer tint) is thirteen hundred times larger than this earth! Its distance at present is 3 light-minutes, or say 424,764,000 miles.

Bring it as near as the moon and it would appear to the unassisted eye more than 29 degrees in diameter, covering some sixteen hundred times as much space on the sky as is covered by the disk of the sun, or of the full moon! Yielding to the force of its gigantic gravitation, the earth would immediately become one of its satellites, but by far the largest of them all, and capable by its attraction of causing the others a good deal of perturbation in their orbital movements.

With a magnifying power of 100 diameters we see Jupiter as it would look to the naked eye at a distance of 4,240,000 miles, or about eighteen times the moon's distance. The spectacle becomes more impressive and formidable the longer you watch it and the more you think about it.

The giant globe is, perhaps, a world in the making. One indication is its relative lack of density. It is 1300 times larger than our globe, but weighs only 315 times more. It must be a mass of hot gases and metallic vapors. It is no doubt slowly cooling and condensing.

Its life as a world, in our sense of a world, is yet before it. It must first become rigid within; it must be clothed with a cool permanent habitable crust; it must acquire a placid atmosphere of vitalizing gases, and a blanket of soil, rich in life-sustaining elements.

And then what a world it will be!

Contracted to the average density of the earth, it will still be some 50,000 miles in diameter. It could contain continents and oceans relatively more than forty times as large as ours. But its surface would probably be smoother than the earth's, while the force of gravity upon it would be much greater. Because of this the inhabitants might be smaller than we are, which would serve to multiply their number as compared with those of the earth.

They would have a much fainter sunlight and lower degree of solar heat than we get, but that could be compensated by the nature and composition of their atmosphere.

Vivid Indications

Another very vivid indication that Jupiter is not yet a rigid globe is furnished by the constant, and evidently violent, movements that the telescope reveals taking place on its variegated surface. Its rotation is so swift that it can be seen in an hour's watching. Notwithstanding its enormous size, Jupiter makes a whole turn on his axis in less than ten hours! And different parts of the surface travel at different rates; those near the equator moving fastest.

On each side of the equator, about in the latitudes where the trade winds blow on the earth, are broad, brightly colored belts that resemble streaming clouds. Frequent changes of shape and hue take place in these. Then there is a side show, presented by th four revolving satellites with their eclipses and transits, in some respects rivaling with the main spectacle.

Once-Overs

THE ENVY GROUCHES.

So you belong to the Envy-Grouchers!

You cannot afford a fine car, so you criticize those who pretend to afford it.

Your home is not as expensive as some of your friends; so you hesitate to invite them to share your hospitality, and lose much happiness.

As if your friendship or theirs were bound by your earthly possessions!

In the homes of your friends who are more well to do, you ruin your chance of enjoyment by constant comparison between their homes and your more humble one.

Perhaps, when you have been entertained in more expensive and better furnished homes than yours, you have experienced a feeling of regret and sorrow, maybe envy, as you opened the door of your little home on your return.

Are you not ashamed of such a mean spirit?

Your own home, if it is the best you can afford, should be considered by you as a haven of rest and comfort and happiness.

How your home compares in material or adornment should not be the basis of value to you, for home is where the heart is, and it takes more than wealth and worldly goods to make happiness.
